A ROW BREAKS UP MINE CONFERENCE

Great Excitement Attends the Meeting Called by Gov. Glasscock

WHITE ISSUES STATEMENT

President of Mine Workers Refuses To Participate in Conference—Says It Was Not Called to Settle Strike

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 21.—Excitement attended the meeting here today of representatives of the commercial and civic bodies of West Virginia, called by Governor Glasscock, to consider the labor situation.

International President John P. White, of the United Mine Workers of America, with Vice President Hayes announced early in the day that they would have nothing to do with the conference because they had learned that it was not the purpose of those in charge of the meeting to permit a discussion of the strike situation in the Kanawha coal field where 1,200 West Virginia militiamen are maintaining martial law. The meeting was postponed in an effort to bring the leaders of the miners and operators together and later in the day it was postponed again, but when it finally convened there was nothing to indicate that an agreement had been reached by which a discussion of existing labor difficulties might be taken up.

President White prepared a statement for presentation to the Governor in which he said:

"We were led to believe that the conference called by the Governor was for the purpose of discussing the present strike and to find some method by which it might be amiacably adjusted, but in a preliminary conference in the Governor's office it was brought to our attention by the parties who appealed to the Governor to call the conference, that its purpose was solely for the discussion of an industrial dispute act to be submitted to the next Legislature, it was not contemplated in any way to enter into a discussion of the real problem of the present hour, an honorable solution of the differences existing at this time between miners and operators. We are much disappointed that this conference does not contemplate such discussion and in view of this fact we have nothing to discuss at this time. We wish to say, however, that we are anxious and willing to meet the operators in joint conference at any time."

This statement did not change the situation so far as White was concerned, and while efforts were being made to outline a course of action for the conference, Vice President Hayes addressed a large audience of striking miners and their sympathizers and Mother Jones talked to another audience almost within the shadow of the State capitol.

When the meeting finally was called to order by Governor Glasscock late in the afternoon, the House of Delegates in the capitol building was crowded. The Governor stated that the conference would consider the question of a minimum wage, high cost of living and settlement of future labor trouble and by arbitration but the miners' strike on Paint and Cabin creeks would not be discussed.

C. Burgess Taylor, of Wheeling, was introduced as chairman and immediately the question of who had a right to sit in the meeting arose, it having been given out that only West Virginians could take part. A statement presented by coal operators of the State that their "presence in this conference is not to be taken as recognition of the United Mine Workers of America," finally created such confusion that a motion to adjourn was put and carried.

EXPECT ARREST SOON.

Only One Small Clue in Express Robbery of $55,000.

Pensacola, Fla., Sept. 21.—The fact that some of the magazine pages substituted for the $55,000 stolen in transit between this city and Flomaton, last Wednesday were stamped "Y. M. C. A.," was the only additional information vouchsafed in connection with the robbery today.

Whether the magazine was taken from the local Y. M. C. A. or in some other city was not learned.

With the arrival of more detectives and special agents today, the investigation shifted from Pensacola to surrounding country in the hope of obtaining some clew to the thief and the missing money.

An official of the Southern Express Company expressed the belief tonight that an arrest will be made within the next 24 hours.

Troy, Mo., Sept. 21.—Speaker Champ Clark made his first campaign speech in his own district today, when he addressed the voters at Hawk Point. He devoted the greater part of his speech to the tariff, and especially as it affects the farmers of the Middle West. He advocated the election of Governor Woodrow Wilson, who, he said, would administer the laws with justice to all.

Ambassador Herrick [illegible] Investigations for Formulating Efficient Credit System to Help the Farmer

Paris, Sept. 21.—Sweeping recommendations for legislation designed to help the development of agriculture in the United States are contained in an elaborate report forwarded to Washington by the American ambassador, Myron T. Herrick, who has completed an exhaustive investigation of the system of agriculture credit facilities in operation in Europe.

The work of gathering and compiling material for the formulation of plans for an efficient land and agricultural system has been carried on under instructions from President Taft, and Ambassador Herrick has been assisted by a commission which reached here from the United States in July. Edwin Chamberlain, of San Antonio, one of the commission, who represents the American Bankers' Association, will report to the organization.

The ambassador's report recommends the adoption by the United States of the Reiffessen system of agricultural co-operative credit societies. This system has been particularly successful in Germany. It includes organizations composed of small co-operative societies, whereby farmers are able to borrow money for a short time on their collective guarantee. These societies have become the nucleus of a series of central co-operative banks.

The report also recommends that persons interested in the welfare of the farmer should form a committee to direct in the proper way a movement for the loaning of money to farmers for a long period at lower rates than they now obtain. The report urges the President to place the matter before the people and suggests the holding of State conventions to be followed by a National convention, at which a permanent committee should be appointed.

In this way the people would gradually become educated to realizing the necessity of adopting uniform State laws, authorizing the establishment of new banking credit institutions, whose sole purpose would be to loan money to farmers under conditions which permit the complete wiping out of the loan through the payment of interest over a long period. This is the essence of the European system.

These credit banks would be complementary to the co-operative loan societies, which the ambassador favors as a first step in the financial relief of farmers. As in the case of co-operative societies, these new loan institutions in the various States would necessitate the establishment of credit banks in the large commercial centers.

SEC. KNOX DINED

Reviews Accomplishments of Japanese Reign Just Closed

Yokohama, Japan, Sept. 21.—American Secretary of State Philander C. Knox, was the guest of honor at a dinner given here tonight by the American colony.

Responding to a toast the secretary reviewed the accomplishments of the reign just closed, saying that Japan's grief, in which those present shared personally, might be assauged by a proud contemplation of the inestimable blessings of the Meijo era, which was unexcelled by any other chapter of human history.

"The Japanese horizon was extended largely because we urged her to open the door for the ingress of our civilization and the egress of her own," he said. "The empire has been united and strengthened through a self-sacrificing patriotism which is without historic precedent."

Recalling with satisfaction the special and important part played by the United States in urging Japan to take her proper place and broaden the stage of her world activities, he said that America is logically prepared to rejoice with Japan in her progress towards the attainment of a maximum development.

AVIATOR MEETS DOOM.

H. J. P. Astley, Intrepid English Birdman, Killed at Belfast.

Belfast, Sept. 21.—H. J. D. Astley, one of the most intrepid and skilful of English aviators, was killed this afternoon by the fall of his aeroplane. Astley and James Valentine, each driving a machine, were making exhibition flights in the presence of 30,000 spectators.

Astley, after a splendid flight, was descending while the people cheered. He attempted to bank too sharply when making a sudden turn and, caught by a fluky wind, the monoplane fell like a stone from a height of 100 feet. Women screamed and fainted.

Astley, when flying from France to England with Miss Trehawke Davis as a passenger, had a marvelous escape near Lille on September 17th. On that occasion the machine fell 150 feet, and Miss Davis is said to have made an entry in her diary of her sensations, as they dropped.

London, Sept. 21.—Astley's wife witnessed the flying at Hendon today. She left the grounds in the best of spirits, not knowing that her husband had been killed.

Richmond, Pa., Sept. 21.—After selecting Guthrie, Okla., as the next convention city, the National League of Postmasters adjourned its annual session today. Fourth Assistant Postmaster General P. V. DeGraw addressed the rural mail service and there were other papers on topics relating to postal work and efficiency.

DEMANDS RELEASE OF W. C. NICHOLS

Ambassador Wilson Calls on Mexican Governor to Free American

SAYS HE MEANS BUSINESS

Mr. Wilson Declares He Will Land Marines if Necessary to Secure Prisoner's Release—Charges Unfounded.

Mexico City, Sept. 21.—Ignoring the usual channels of diplomatic intercourse, the American ambassador, Henry Lane Wilson, has made a peremptory demand on Governor Matias Guerra, of the State of Tamaulipas, for the immediate release from the jail at Tampico of W. C. Nichols, an American fruit grower. Nichols was arrested six months ago on a charge of having killed a bandit, Caballos, whose apprehension the authorities had attempted for many months.

The embassy was authorized by the administration at Washington to employ whatever means were considered necessary to bring about an amelioration of Nichols' condition. Ambassador Wilson says he will secure the release, even if it be necessary to land marines from the cruiser Des Moines at Tampico, with 280 marines aboard. The American ambassador regards the treatment of Nichols by the Mexican authorities as persecution. In support of this belief he points to the fact that a Mexican confessed in court to being the slayer of Caballos.

This confession was disregarded by the court, which said it was prompted by belief that a reward had been offered for Caballos dead or alive. The Mexican was not arrested and the process against Nichols was continued on appeal.

The jail in which Nichols is confined is filthy and overcrowded.

Ambassador Wilson has been treating with the matter for several months diplomatically, but has met with delays and accomplished little.

In his note to the Governor, the ambassador reminded him that his message was not official, but that it was to be considered none the less authoritative. He demanded that Nichols be placed "in surroundings more sanitary and in keeping with the usage of civilized countries," pending the proceedings against him ,which Ambassador Wilson suggested be hastened.

The killing of Caballos occurred near Tampico. Nichols, who had been vested with authority to arrest the desperado, was taking him to Tampico on a train when, in the confusion at the crowded station, the captive escaped. A crowd pursued. Nichols admits firing, but the evidence showed that he fired in the air. The body of Caballos was found later several hundred yards from the spot with a bullet through the heart.

Nichols' high character has been testified to by a petition signed by 100 American residents of Tamaulipas.

YOUNG FLAGMAN KILLED.

Corley Jordan Meets Terrible Death on Southern Railway.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 21.—With his right side of his head and body terribly mangled from falling under the wheels of a freight car, Carley Jordan, flagman of the Southern Railway, lingered during the afternoon at Rex Hospital and died in great agony tonight.

While flagging on a local freight, Goldsboro to Raleigh, he allowed his train to get up nearly 30 miles speed before he made the move to get aboard, considering himself, it is said, especially except in catching on to a fast moving train. He lost his footing and was dragged under the wheels.

Jordan was 20 years old, a son of the late J. B. Jordan, for years a well known Deputy United States Marshal here. He has two brothers in the Southern Railway service. George Jordan was only last night checked out as union station agent here to return to work as flagman. Another brother, Hubert, is a Southern baggage master.

TWO PEOPLE KILLED

And Several Injured In Seaboard Wreck Near Americus, Ga.

Savannah, Ga., Sept. 21.—Two people were killed and several injured, one fatally, in a collision between a freight train and a special work train at Stuart's mill trestle, seven miles from Americus, on the Seaboard Air Line early tonight. The dead are Engineer R. J Finch, of Richland, Ga., and John Colbert, a negro brakeman of Americus. Fireman Thomas Stanley, white, was fatally injured. Several laborers who were on the work train were hurt but none seriously.

A relief train with wrecking outfit and doctors was rushed to the scene. The dead and injured were taken to Americus.

New York, Sept 21.—The statement of the actual conditions of clearing house banks and trust companies for the week shows that they hold $7,371,600 reserve, in excess of legal requirements. This is an increase of $3,751,810 from last week.

HOT SPRINGS HEARING BEGUN

Two Witnesses Are Examined to Determine What Sam Schepps Said In Regard to Rosenthal Case—Advised to Flee

Hot Springs, Ark., Sept. 21.—Two witnesses were examined here today before Special Examiner C. F. Huff, in the hearing to determine what Sam Schepps said in Hot Springs at the time he was taken into custody as a witness in the Herman Rosenthal murder case in New York.

Thos. J. Pettit, acting mayor when Schepps was arrested, testified that Schepps declared a New York lawyer advised him to "make your getaway and go as far as you can."

Schepps, the witness said, gave the name of his adviser as a lawyer named Sullivan, but went no further into his identity.

J. L. Sullivan, a New Orleans newspaper man, was the second witness. He had been approached, he testified, by a detective, in the interest of counsel for Becker, but had told his interviewer he knew nothing regarding Schepps.

District Attorney Whitman, of New York, and J. W. Hart, representing Police Lieutenant Becker, questioned the witnesses. The hearing will be resumed Monday, when Gilbert Hogaboom, proprietor of a Hot Springs bath house, will be called. Schepps is said to have frequented his place.

WATERWAYS PROGRAMME

Secretary Announces List of Speakers At Coming Convention

Little Rock, Ark., Sept. 21.—Secretary T. B. Lovelace, of the Lakes-to-The-Gulf Deep Waterways Association, today announced the official programme for the convention which meets in this city September 24th to 26th. The features include an address by Col. Roosevelt, and a barbecue at Forrest Park for 5,000 delegates and visitors.

The convention will be opened with an invocation by Bishop J. R. Winchester, of the Episcopal diocese of Arkansas. After the addresses of welcome by Mayor Charles E. Taylor and Gov. Donaghey, the principal addresses for the three days will be as follows:

First day—President W. K. Kavanaugh, of the Deep Waterways Association; Lyman E. Cooley, of Chicago, and others.

Second day—Congressman W. A. Rodenberg, of Illinois, and Watson, of Indiana; John M. Parker, of New Orleans; Col. Roosevelt, Senator R. L. Owen, of Oklahoma; Nathaniel Butler, of Chicago, and Senator John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi.

Third day—Senator James P. Clarke, of Arkansas; W. L. Park, vice president of the Illinois Central; President B. F. Bush, of the Missouri Pacific; Lieut. Gov. T. C. Barrett, of Louisiana and former Governor Jos. W. Folk, of Missouri.

AUTO RACES POSTPONED.

Drivers Will Compete for Vanderbilt Cup October 2nd.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 21.—The Vanderbilt cup automobile races have been postponed until week after next because of rain for several days, which made the track unsafe. The Vanderbilt race will be held on October 2nd, the Pabst and Wisconsin challenge trophy events on October 3rd and the Grand Prix on October 5th. This decision was reached at a meeting today of the officials, drivers and members of the Milwaukee Automobile Dealers' Association.

The drivers to a man voted to remain and compete in the races. Additional entries may also be received.

GOV. WILSON GETS IN THE N. J. FRAY

Democratic Nominee Opposes the Candidacy of James Smith, Jr.

HE SPEAKS FOR WM. HUGHES

The Jersey Governor Takes Stump And Warns His People Against Senator Smith—Declares He Is Not a Progressive

Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 21.—Gov. Woodrow Wilson proclaimed tonight in a speech on the New Jersey Senatorial situation that the only condition upon which the Democratic party can gain the confidence of the nation is "that it should have itself through and through absolutely committed to progressive policy."

The Governor spoke here and at Hoboken in opposition to the candidacy of former U. S Senator James Smith, Jr., and in behalf of Representative Wm. Hughes for the office of U. S. Senator, to be voted on in the State primary next Tuesday.

The Governor declared at the outset that it was his duty as spokesman of the Democratic party in the State to warn the people that James Smith, Jr., was not a progressive, but a reactionary. He declared that it was no personal contest and that Mr. Smith was his "nearest friend and held the same opinions that he does," the Governor would feel obliged to oppose him.

"I have never been aware of any personal feeling on my part in any political contest against any individual," said the Governor. "The United States is not choosing men now by their private character merely; it is not choosing them for their like ability; it is not choosing them because they are fine fellows, but it is choosing them because they understand the interests of America at this present moment.

"And many a man bred in the old school of politics is being rejected now, not because he does not hold his convictions honestly, but because he holds convictions from which the country has turned away.

"We are at a critical juncture in the history of America and at a very critical juncture in the history of the Democratic party. There is only one condition upon which the Democratic party can gain the confidence of the nation and that is that it should have itself through and through absolutely committed to progressive policy. Just so surely as it turns back, just so certainly as it makes any other choice, it will be rejected now and need have no hope whatever of being chosen again for our generation."

"We are not speaking our own individual opinions. We are the spokesmen of a great progressive force in this Nation. Why is it that some men who would naturally ally themselves with a third party in this Nation are now refusing to do so? Because they say there was no excuse for the formation of that party after the profession of principles and the nominations of the Baltimore convention. Before the campaign began the very leaders of that party admitted that I stood by the very thing that they profess to stand for; and the contest now as between parties is to gain the permanent confidence of the people of the United States, who have made up their minds that we must move forward with the change of circumstances and the altered necessities of politics. Therefore any man who stands in the way of this great movement of humanity must stand aside. He cannot walk with the triumphant hosts of the great Democracy.

"In a statement which he has just issued Mr. Smith distinctly takes his part—his side—with those who mean to maintain the present protective tariff. He puts it upon the ground that it is in the interest of the American working man. Now, I am not going to stop to argue whether it was in the interest of the American workingman or not, before the monopolies grew up that are now trying to break the backs of organized labor. But the men who have grown so big as to threaten the power of the government itself by means of the tariff are not the friends of labor; and when the beneficiaries of the tariff are not the friends of the laboring man, I take leave to believe that the tariff is not good for the working man.

"Mr. Smith's mind is lingering in a past generation and it is extremely significant that it was Mr. Smith himself who made it impossible for the Democrats of this Nation, some 20 years ago, to legislate as they desired to legislate on the tariff.

"At that time it looked simply like spoiling a party programme. Now it would be like preventing the emancipation of a Nation. He declares himself on the side of those who back Mr. Taft and of those who back Mr. Roosevelt, because these gentlemen do not propose any extended way to alter the tariff."

The Governor charged that Mr. Smith had attempted to frustrate progressive legislation in New Jersey. In closing his speech the Presidential nominee spoke of the record of Mr. Hughes in Congress and paid warm tribute to the unselfishness of Judge [illegible] E. Wescott, who withdrew from the Senatorial race in order that the contest might be conducted against Mr. Smith by a single candidate.

At both meetings the Governor was enthusiastically cheered. He returned to Seagirt tonight.

AN AGREEMENT IS REACHED

Trainmen Settle Wage Question With N. & W., C. & O., and Virginian Railways—Terms of Settlement Not Known.

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 21.—An agreement was today signed by both sides settling the wage and other questions which have been in dispute for some weeks as between the Norfolk & Western, Chesapeake & Ohio, and Virginian railways and the trainmen of those roads, and there will be no strike.

An official statement was given out late today announcing the agreement, but the terms of the same were not made public. The trainmen were fighting for a 15 and 10 per cent. wage increase. Both sides are believed to have yielded to some extent. The settlement came through the mediation of United States Commissioner of Labor Charles P. Neill.

The following is the official statement given out by the committee authorized to prepare and make a statement to the press:

"The conference at Norfolk between the officials of the Norfolk & Western Railway, Chesapeake & Ohio Railway and Virginian Railway and representatives of the conductors, trainmen and yardmen employed by those roads, came to a close today.

"All questions at issue were settled and an agreement was signed by both parties."

To this oral statement was added that the monetary basis upon which the settlement was effected could not be stated at this time, as certain details of this work remain to be worked out.

This will be done next week, probably Monday, at Norfolk, at Roanoke and at Richmond in conference between representatives of the individual roads involved in the general settlement and the trainmen in their employ.

KITCHIN AT LAURINBURG

Governor Speaks to Large and Attentive Audience In Scotland

Laurinburg, N. C., September 21.—Governor Kitchin spoke here this afternoon to a crowded Court House with people standing about the door and in the aisle. When he exhibited the picture of Senator Simmons in the Lumberman's Journal after having explained that journal's editorial commendation of Senator Simmons' speech and record, the Governor said here the supporters of Simmons have an opportunity to applaud which brought out liberal applause from Simmons supporters present. As the applause died away he said: "I will give the best suit of clothes that money can buy to any man who will show me a picture of Vance, Ranson or Jarvis in such a journal approving their course on tariff measures, and I never expect to have to buy the clothes." This opened the way for prolonged applause of the Kitchin supporters. The Governor said that it had been stated that he would not speak under auspices of the Democratic executive committee, when in fact, the chairman of the committee had been in consultation with them about his appointments and some were about agreed upon, and that he would speak in the campaign for the whole Democratic ticket from the President down; that every speech he made was a Democratic speech and he had begun making them when a youth, making as many as any other man in the State of his age. He referred to the effort of some of the supporters of Simmons to make it appear that he was a fusionist while Simmons was a red-shirter and said that in all the campaigns he made while the Populist party existed he had to fight fusion; that he wrote every plank of the 1898 platform but one, and that while he would not detract one iota from Simmons' record in the campaign of 1898 for he believed Simmons did his duty in it, he would wish to dispel the idea that the red-shirt campaign was waged by a man in Democratic headquarters instead of the white men of Scotland, Richmond and other counties; that when he was at Ellerbe, in Richmond county, two weeks ago, he spoke of the red-shirt campaign when a gentleman in the audience got up and asked to be allowed to interrupt and said that when the good women of that section had been making red shirts for two weeks and there was a red-shirt procession started Cam Morrison and Paul Whitlock met the procession riding in great speed with a telegram from Mr. Simmons, saying this thing would never do. Kitchin said all he asked in connection therewith was that his friends get history straight and not claim that Simmons was the head and front of a movement that he disapproved of until he saw that it was sweeping the State; that he had not even known before that the gentleman interrupting was a red-shirter. Some of our people who had formed their opinion of Kitchin's speeches from reading the newspapers, were loath to attend the speaking but others who had heard him in Rockingham two weeks ago assured them that there was not a word of abuse and not a word that a Democrat could properly say and not a word that a manly man might not say in fair, legitimate argument, and there is no man who heard Kitchin who does not know that such impressions were very unfair and unjust to Kitchin. Whether or not Mr. Kitchin made many votes this correspondent does not know, but that his speech set people to thinking along lines not heretofore well understood by many, is certain. It was a Kitchin audience.

TEDDY REPLIES TO GOVERNOR WILSON

Declares Governor Is Buchanan of Present Industrial Situation

ANSWERS RECENT ADDRESSES

Bull Moose Defends His Trust Record And Says Opponent Offers No Remedy for Evils—Will Speak In This State

Topeka, Kan., Sept. 21.—"Mr. Wilson is the Buchanan of the present industrial situation in the United States."

Col. Roosevelt thus summed up his opinion of the Democratic candidate's position and policies tonight.

He charged Gov. Wilson had directly inverted the truth, and said that his knowledge of the Roosevelt administration was gained "from the position of an ultra-conservative and was being carefully groomed for the Presidency by Geo. B. Harvey and other representatives of Wall Street."

Col. Roosevelt's speech was devoted largely to a reply to Gov. Wilson's recent addresses.

"At Detroit yesterday," Col. Roosevelt said, "Mr. Wilson made a statement which purported to be an answer to what I said in Colorado. He states that the trusts grew faster during my administration than previously. Let him be frank enough and manly enough to admit, what he cannot deny, that my administration was the first that ever undertook to enforce the law against the trusts. It is not in accordance with the facts to say that they grew faster during my administration than during any other, if by growth is meant a growth in illegal trusts, for most of the growth referred to was merely a growth in corporations due to the general prosperity.

"But the reason there was any growth in illegal trusts at all as I repeatedly pointed out in messages while I was President, 'was that we were not given the proper law for dealing with them.' Mr. Wilson is now doing his best to prevent such a law being given. The failure of this government efficiently to grapple with the trusts is due almost exclusively to the attitude of men like Mr. Wilson.

"Mr. Wilson states in rather disingenious form, that I had said that it was not possible to 'check' the supremacy of the trusts. Now, if Mr. Wilson does not know that this is an absolute misstatement, it is due to his deliberate refusal to read what I have said and what the platform said. My statement is the direct reverse of that which Mr Wilson alleges.

"Mr. Wilson says our proposed commission 'would not tell how other men should be admitted into the field of competition with the trusts.' This is an absolute misstatement. Mr. Wilson would do well hereafter not to attempt to state our position without taking the trouble to find out what it is. Our platform says explicitly that our commission must attack unfair competition, false capitalization and political privileges and by continued trained watchfulness guard and keep open, equally to all, the highways of American commerce.

"He says that our proposal is to say to the trusts that they are 'beneficent,' but not 'cruel.' This is such a preposterous misstatement, that I suppose Mr. Wilson must have had a theory that he was being funny when he made it. If Mr. Wilson wishes to be funny I cordially advise him to let his humor find some other outlet than that of deliberate misrepresentations.

"The trouble with Mr. Wilson's position is fundamental. Professing the views he has repeatedly professed, both in his books during the 50-odd years that he was a reactionary, and in his speeches during the 18 months since, doubtless sincerely, he abandoned his reactionary beliefs, he is wholly unable to advocate or devise any plan which will really control the trusts or relieve the present situation."

N. C. Included In Itinerary

New York, Sept. 21.—North Carolina and Virginia will be included in Col. Roosevelt's itinerary during the next 10 days, it was announced here tonight.

Tuesday October 21st, he will make short stops at Asheville, Salisbury, Greensboro, Burlington and Durham and will speak in a large new hall in Raleigh, N. C., on the evening of October 1st.

Col. Roosevelt will leave Raleigh at 12:45 o'clock A. M., on October 2nd, and travel direct to this city. He will go to Oyster Bay and rest for several days.

After passing through Columbus and Macon, Ga., on Sept. 28th, the Colonel will arrive in Atlanta that evening and speak in the auditorium. He will leave Atlanta on the afternoon of Sunday the 29th for Chattanooga, where he will talk on Sept. 30th. He will arrive at Knoxville, Tenn., on Monday at 2:30 P. M., and speak at a meeting there that night.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 21.—In the Fourth Congressional district primary today Representative Robert Turnbull, was nominated, defeating Walter A. Watson by a large majority.

Brooklyn, Sept. 21.—Brooklyn walked away from St. Louis today 12 to 0. Rucker pitched sensational ball, striking out 11 men and allowing only seven hits, all scattered. He also placed three hits to his credit. Stengel, the new Brooklyn outfielder, kept up his sensational hitting by making the longest drive of the season over the right field fence, in his first time up. Daubert tripled in the eighth with the bases full.

BOYS' BRIGADE WON

Defeated Delgado Baseball Team In Eleven-Inning Contest

The game of baseball played yesterday afternoon at League Park between the Company B team of the Boys' Brigade and the Delgado team, was in every way a good exhibition of the genuine article. Both teams shared in the spectacular plays. Neither team was able to send a man as far as third base until the first half of the ninth, Delgado being at bat sent one across the rubber. Company B coming up for their half was successful in tallying. In the 11th Company B succeeded in making another tally which gave them the game. In each of the second, third and fourth innings Company B made double plays. During the game Company B succeeded in getting eight hits; Delgado driving six to safety. The batteries for Company B were Register, E., and Burnett, C.; for Delgado, Holt and Parrish. Both batteries did good work, there not being a wild pitch or passed ball by either. Register, for Company B, struck out 12, while Holt, for Delgado, struck out nine.

This is the second game between these teams. The first was played last Saturday and was won by Delgado. Company B being the winners yesterday places them on even grounds. The final game between the teams for the season will be played next Saturday at League Park. The game next Saturday will decide which of the two teams shall have second honors of the city.

INTERNATIONAL CLOSES.

Toronto is Pennant Winner by Five Games Over Rochester.

New York, Sept. 21.—Although games in two cities are scheduled for tomorrow, the International League season practically closed with the playing of today's games, with Toronto the pennant winner by a margin of 33 points, or five games over Rochester, in second place.

Newark, Baltimore, Buffalo, Montreal, Jersey City and Providence follow in the order given.

"Everything considered, we have had a big season," said President Edward Barrow, of the league, tonight. "The prospects for next season are bright. There will be no change in the circuit."

DESPONDENT WOMEN

Of course a woman will naturally see the dark side of everything when tortured by some form of female disease from which she cannot find relief.

No woman can be happy when there are irregularities, nervousness, backache, headache, dragging down pains, inflammation, ulceration or displacements.

Such women should remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will go to the root of the evil and quickly dispel these troubles. It has been the safeguard of woman's health for nearly forty years and druggists sell large quantities of it.

Detroit, Sept. 21.—Boston hit Willett freely today and Detroit gave a ragged fielding exhibition. The new champions won 11 to 4.

Larry Gardner, third baseman for Boston, broke the little finger of his right hand trying to stab a grounder from Bush in the eighth inning. Manager Stahl said tonight that Gardner would be out the remainder of the season, but would play in the world's series. Cobb's injured knee caused him to retire in the eighth inning. The feature of the game was home runs by Speaker and Crawford inside the park. This has been accomplished but once before.

MR. MEARES TO SPEAK

Has Many Horned Subjects for Wake County Progressive Convention

(Special Star Telegram.)

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 21.—A Wake county convention of "Progressives and Roosevelt Republicans" is called to assemble in Raleigh September 28th to nominate county candidates and form an organization to support Col. Roosevelt for President. Lester F. Butler, brother of ex-Senator Marion Butler, is one of 18 signers of the call. They announce that Iredell Meares, of Wilmington, Progressive nominee for Governor, is to address the convention, discussing, "Need of Progressive movement for county, State and Nation; social and industrial justice; protection and trusts; Roosevelt and the farmer; Roosevelt and labor; Wilson's attitude to trades unions; dawn of new era for North Carolina."

New Hanover Superior Court

New Hanover Superior Court will begin Thursday morning of this week if the Holly case, now being tried at Burgaw, is completed in time. According to information from Burgaw last night it is not likely that the case will be finished until the latter part of the week and it appears to be doubtful that there will be any criminal court here this week. There are about 20 cases on the docket for trial, including three for burglary, one for murder, one for second degree murder and one for manslaughter. The murder case is the one in which T. C. Croom is the defendant and he is charged with the murder of Mr. J. H. Sykes. Croom has not yet been arrested, although officers have made a diligent search for him, but it is thought that he will surrender himself soon after court opens.

I understand that my remarks on the stand as a witness in the Queen Theatre case was misunderstood by some as I did not mean to say that it was not visited by some respectable people and I, therefore, take this medium of removing such an impression.

THE SOUTHERN NATIONAL BANK

YOUNG MEN FOR WILSON.

Progressive End Honeycombed With Men Under 40 Years.

New York, Sept.—Governor Woodrow Wilson thinks the young man is going to play a more important part in the election in November than he ever did before

The progressive end of the Democratic party is honeycombed with men under 40 years of age. Dudley Field Malone, son-in-law of Senator James A. O'Gorman, of New York, has been appointed National Chairman of the Young Men's Woodrow Wilson movement. Headquarters have been opened at room 1014, Fifth Avenue building, New York City, and John R. Rafter, is National secretary.

Mr. Malone, who has gained a country-wide reputation as an orator, is making a tour of the Middle West. The plans call for the organizing of more than two score Young Men's clubs in New York State alone.

The following statement by Mr. Malone sets forth the idea of the Young Men's movement:

"We are sounding a call to the young men of the country to stand and fight with Woodrow Wilson. We are organizing Young Men's Wilson Clubs throughout the Nation. Morgan Davies has opened headquarters at Chicago and is canvassing the West. Senator Frank Quigley, of Massachusetts, is in charge of New England, and Lee Douglass, of Nashville, Tenn., is chairman of the Southern States. We shall personally supervise the remaining States from the New York headquarters.

"Enthusiastic support meets us everywhere. Over 50,000 young men have already volunteered their services for this fight. Woodrow Wilson has captured the young men of today. He is a fighter and a leader. He understands the schemes by which the industrial and political combinations corruptly obstruct the door of opportunity, and he can hit hard enough to clear the obstructed way.

"Young men to not want President Taft. He rattled the war drum four years ago and we assembled to fight, only to learn that he intended to surrender.

"We do not want Roosevelt. We want a man of truth. No man in America can stand with Cannon and Aldrich for seven years without a single protest against their blockade of tariff reform and now rightly claim that he hates the bosses. The fight against these National bosses was not won until Roosevelt went to Africa. He is a shrewd politician, but young men do not want shrewd politicians. They want a true leader, big enough in heart, conscience and brain to represent and guide 90,000,000 people. We want a genuine progressive like Woodrow Wilson.

"We are calling for volunteers. Before this campaign is over the part the young men of this country will have taken in this fight will be spirited and inspiring. No boss or set of bosses, Penrose or Flinn, Woodruff or Barnes, nor the bosses of Big Business like Guggenheim and Perkins, individually or collectively, can stand against the army of young men that will soon be marching in every town of the United States. I appeal to every young man in the Nation to raise the Wilson standard in his home district, to co-operate with his friends and form a club, through which his efforts for Woodrow Wilson can find their best expression. Woodrow Wilson is leading; his path is straight ahead. We have opened fire and will support him all along the line."

The Fall Season

Is now here, and Geo. O. Gaylord has been working hard to get ready for it. I have spent ten days in the Northern Market together with Miss Alma Brown, selecting new goods for the store. We will have our Fall Opening October 1st, 2nd and 3rd—being Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

We will also add to our regular Millinery Opening a big display of Ladies' and Misses' Coat Suits.

We have just received this week a splendid assortment of new Ginghams for School Dresses. We are selling nice plaid Scotch Ginghams for 8 and 10 cents a yard; regular 12½c. and 15c. goods.

We have also received a big stock of New Shoes, and have specially a nice assortment to show the boys and girls for School Wear. Our prices are cheaper on shoes than elsewhere, and the assortment is larger.

In our Dress Goods and Silk Department we have just received a beautiful black Taffeta Silk a yard wide for 75c. per yard. We have all colors and widths in silks from 35c. 35c. a yard to $1.00 a yard.

Our Coat Suit Department is in the hands of experienced help, and we have an unusually large assortment of Coat Suits to show, and we are going to sell Suits cheaper this year than we have ever sold them. We are showing a beautiful line of Serge Suits in blue, black and brown. They are worth $13.12 apiece at our regular selling price; if we can fit you up in one of those Suits without any alteration, we can sell it to you for $9.98. We have lots of other Suits that we are making special prices on. We will sell you a nice Misses' Suit as low as $7.50, and a beautiful Middy Blouse Suit, all wool goods, at $5.50.

The Big Store is piled full of new goods, and we want your business. Guaranteed to save you money on your purchase and give you premiums free.

JUST THREE MORE DAYS OF THE Defiance Sale.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will be the last days of our Defiance Sale, in which everything is sold for Less than can be duplicated. The past three days have moved so many goods that three more will move as many goods out of our regular run as we care to handle for no profit.

We will continue to sell the samples for less than any man can buy them until the stock of samples is exhausted. We have saved more money to a greater number of people during the last three days than any sale in Wilmington ever did.

We will do the same the next three days.

An Undesirable Senator

By MARK SULLIVAN.

(From Collier's Weekly, September 21st, 1912,)

THE man who drew the cartoon on this page, (reference being to a cartoon on the same page), Herbert Johnson, of the Philadelphia "North American", has a unique gift for putting a complicated political situation into a single vivid picture. So long as the Republican party was in power the representatives of special interests infested that party; they were driven out by the Insurgent movement, which began in 1909 and has just culminated in the formation of a new party. Now, just as the Democrats seem likely to come into power, the special interests are quietly placing their representatives at carefully selected strategic points within that party. If the Democrats are not extremely vigilant, they will suffer again the same experience they had the last time they came into power, eighteen years ago. What happened then was described only a few days ago by Woodrow Wilson in these words:

"It is of particularly sinister import that Mr. Smith should seek to return to the Senate of the United States at this time. He was sent to the Senate once before, when the tariff had been the chief issue of the National campaign, and when the Democrats had, for once in a generation, an opportunity. * * * Mr. Smith was one of a small group of Senators, calling themselves Democrats, who, at that critical and hopeful juncture in our politics, utterly defeated the programme of the party. His election now might bring the party face to face with a similar disaster and disgrace"

Governor Wilson was speaking of Jas. Smith, Jr., now seeking re-election as a Senator; his words apply with equal truth to Senator Furnifold M. Simmons, of North Carolina, likewise seeking re-election.

"Lumber, Timber and Logs."

THE Democratic National Convention at Denver on July 4, 1908, adopted this plank:

"We demand the immediate repeal o fthe tariff on wood pulp, print paper, lumber, timber, and logs."

Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, was a member of the Committee on Resolutions which wrote this plank. When the platform, including this plank, was brought before the convention it was adopted unanimously. Senator Simmons, as a member of the convention, voted for it; thereby he became bound to a greater degree than other Democrats by the promise to the people contained in the words of the plank.

The Record of Simmons.

FATE took exactly ten months and fourteen days to bring Senator Simmons his opportunity to live up to the promise made by himself and his party. On May 24, 1909, there was introduced into the United States Senate (by a Democrat) this amendment:

"Nothing contained in this act shall prevent the admission free of duty of the following articles: Lumber of all kinds. * * *"

On that roll call Simmons joined the Republicans and voted with Aldrich, nay. And this was but the beginning.

Simmons voted with Aldrich and the Republicans against reducing the duty on sawed lumber to $1 per thousand feet.

Simmons voted with Aldrich and the Republicans against reducing the duty on planed lumber to twenty-five cents per thousand feet.

Simmons voted with Aldrich and the Republicans against reducing the duty on coal from sixty to forty cents a ton.

Is Senator Simmons a Man Who Can Be Depended on to Keep Democratic Promises?

Simmons voted with Aldrich and the Republicans in favor of a duty of twenty-five cents a ton on iron ore.

And many others too numerous to mention.

Lorimer and Lumber.

TURN now to Simmons' record on Lorimer. It was observed that there was a curious identity between the little group of Democratic Senators who voted in favor of a duty on lumber and those who voted in favor of Lorimer. Simmons was conspicuous in both lists. There were ten Democratic Senators who voted for Lorimer; of these, two were, at the time of the Lorimer vote, new Senators who had not been in the Senate at the time of the voting on free lumber. The following eight (out of ten pro-Lorimer Senators in all) also repudiated the Democratic platform pledge in order to vote against free lumber:

BAILEY,	JOHNSTON, Ala.
BANKHEAD.	SIMMONS,
FLETCHER,	SMITH, Md.
FOSTER,	TILLMAN.

It came out in the Lorimer exposure that Edward Hines, president of the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association (who said he spent $100,000 to put Lorimer in the Senate), had spent the tariff session at Washington and once wrote that he was having a hard time "keeping the Southern Democrats in line."

Simmons voted in favor of Lorimer twice; the third and last vote came only a few weeks ago, when Simmons was in the midst of his fight for re-election, and all North Carolina was stirred up over it. On this occasion Simmons deserted Lorimer and voted to deprive him of his seat.

Soliciting Bids.

NOT only did Simmons vote for a high tariff on lumber; he addressed the Senate in favor of it:

"I am ready, with him and with any other man on either side of this chamber ('any other man' was generally Aldrich) to extend the same treatment to every product embraced in this bill; I do not care in what section of the country it is located."

There you have it. That is exactly how every high tariff bill has been passed—"You vote for my lumber; I'll vote for your steel." Senator Simmons has put into a single sentence the whole philosophy and mechanism of logrolling.

The Injury to the Party.

THE action of Simmons and his little group of Democrats who joined him in repudiating the platform promise did very great damage to the party's prestige. The New York "World", the most powerful Democratic daily paper in the country, said at the time:

"There are political sins for which punishment is certain. They affront decency and good faith. They reveal a degradation in our political life which almost passes belief. They put the Democratic party on trial, not for its principles, but for its honesty. Errors of judgment may be defended and excused, but perfidy finds no apologist anywhere."

"The Invisible Government."

ONE of the most careful observers in Washington wrote this for the Denver "Express":

"Senator Penrose is following the footsteps of his predecessor, Mr. Aldrich, in trading across the party line when it comes to protecting the high tariff schedules. The other day, when the Pennsylvania Senator reported his suggested revision of the wool schedule * * * Penrose held a little informal meeting in the Senate lobby with Senator Simmons, of North Carolina. The writer stood by and heard this conversation:

"Simmons—'What do you want us to do? Do you need any votes?

"Penrose—'No, I think I can put it over; you fellows vote for your own bill.'

"Simmons—'You don't need any of our votes then?'

"Penrose—'No, you fellows vote for your own bill. I'll take a chance on putting it over and then I'll fix it up in conference'."

There have been many denials and near denials of this statement. Persons who understand the invisible government do not heed them; they know that this little situation pictures perfectly the relation between the reactionary Republicans and the reactionary Democrats.

The Whole Point.

"IF THE Democratic party does not keep its promises now, it will never have another opportunity to do so"—Woodrow Wilson, speaking at Sea Girt on September 8th.

Is Senator Simmons a man who can be depended on to keep Democratic promises?

PUBLISHERS' ANNOUNCEMENT.

THE MORNING STAR, the oldest daily newspaper in North Carolina, is published daily except Monday, at $6 per year, $3 for six months, $1.50 for three months, 50 cents for one month, served by carriers in the city, or by mail.

THE SUNDAY STAR, by mail, one year, $1; six months, 50 cents; three months, 25 cents.

ADVERTISING RATES may be had on application, and advertisers may feel assured that through the columns of this paper they may reach all Wilmington, Eastern Carolina and contiguous territory in South Carolina.

Obituary sketches, cards of thanks, communications espousing the cause of a private enterprise or a political candidate, and like matter, will be charged at the rate of 10 cents per line, or if paid cash in advance, a half rate will be allowed. Announcements of fairs, festivals, balls, hops, picnics, society greetings, political meetings, etc., will be charged under same conditions, except so much thereof as may be of news value to readers of the paper.

Advertisements discontinued before expiration of contracts are charged transient rates for time actually published. Payment for transient advertisements must be cash in advance. Contract advertisers will not be allowed to exceed their space at same rates, or advertise anything foreign to their regular business without extra charge. Advertisements to occupy special place will be charged for according to position desired.

TELEPHONES: Business Office, No. 51; Editorial and Local rooms, No. 61. Call either, if the other doesn't answer.

COMMUNICATIONS, unless they contain important news, or discuss briefly and properly subjects of real interest, are not wanted; and if acceptable in every other way, they will invariably be rejected unless the real name of the author accompanies the same, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

Sunday, September 22, 1912.

The crops are now moving and business will move up in a lively fashion in the South.

A woman who delivers a political address does so in a fitting manner and telling style.

Don't be a griller. When it gets to be chronic it does not have the effect that it is intended for it to have.

Governor Marshall, the Democratic nominee for Vice President, makes a speech like a house afire. There is no abuse in his speeches but plenty of ginger.

Roosevelt now goes so far as to advocate the recall of Presidents. He knows Wilson is going to be President and he does not want him to serve out his term.

Chin Man is the name of a Chinese opium smuggler arrested in New York a few days ago. His name sounds like he could have passed himself off as a political spieler engaged in the distribution of campaign dope.

Senator LaFollette is going to write a book about the Progressive movement and all the features of the strange political mix-up in this campaign. Roosevelt's picture will be in it but he won't be any hero in the story.

Candidates with fine records on which to run ought to hate to try to detract from the records of others. Because an officeholder's record might or might not be approved it constitutes no reason why his detractor should be given his place.

The Republican State convention in Iowa endorsed Governor McGovern and Senator LaFollette but ignored both Taft and Roosevelt. Of course, it wouldn't look exactly right to have endorsed Wilson, but the probability is the will was there.

Senator Dixon, Roosevelt's manager, complains that he and Medill McCormac are being dogged by secret service men from Attorney General Wickersham's department. If they have no secrets, what do they care whose secret service men are on their trail?

In order to aid in the election of Woodrow Wilson, it is vitally important that subscriptions to the campaign fund be made now. The Star receives amounts contributed and forwards them to headquarters. Give heed to this matter now. Time is getting short.

One of the nicest things Woodrow Wilson has done during this campaign was when he spoke in St. Paul, Minn., a few days ago. The masterful Democratic nominee for President paid a sincere tribute to President Taft's personal integrity and patriotism, and scorned the partisianship that does not respect and honor the Presidency of the Republic. Wilson is a big man and his differences with President Taft are political and not personal. We believe Southern Democrats generally share the fine sentiment expressed by the next President.

A few days ago President Taft took occasion to jump on Congress. He waited, however, till Congress had adjourned, but no reasonable man will blame the President for swatting what practically was a Democratic Congress, with a House that had a Democratic majority and a Senate co-operatively Democratic. Taft has every reason for wanting to swat that Congress, for it made him show his hand against the people and made his re-election a matter of impossibility. The Democrats constructed a beautiful political mausoleum for Taft even before the campaign opened.

WILMINGTON'S CRYING SHAME.

With all the interest Wilmington professes to have in Governor Woodrow Wilson personally, aside from his leadership of the people in the campaign for the Presidency, it is a crying shame that our men of money and professed political interest have not more substantially contributed to the legitimate expenses of his campaign, appeals for which have been made in these columns from time to time.

As a matter of fact, a large proportion of the fund which the Star has been able to raise has come from public spirited citizens outside of Wilmington. By reason of his former residency, by reason of the long ministerial career of his father, the venerable Dr. Jos. R. Wilson, in this city, Wilmington should see to it that no city or section of country surpasses it in the warmth of its support of Governor Wilson, yet we find a condition of such utter indifference and such absolute disregard of appeals for his campaign as to cast a sad reflection upon our city.

In addition to former acknowledgments of funds for the Wilson and Marshall campaign, The Star on yesterday received a check for $10 for this fund from Mr. J. P. Council, of Wananish, which with $19 previously acknowledged, brings this fund up to only $29.

This last appeal is made to the people of Wilmington and Eastern Carolina at the suggestion of the Democratic National Committee and for the coming days of this week it is sincerely hoped that the contributions will be many and large ones. Anything from $1.00 to $1,000, if from proper sources, will be cheerfully received, acknowledged and promptly forwarded to headquarters. This is the last opportunity! Will you sit down now and send your check for what you think you can spare in the interest of a fight for yourself and your people?

INLAND LINE OF STEAMERS

Newbern seems to be the first city on the Intercoastal Waterway to take steps to establish a line of steamers to ply the waters of the inland route. The steamers will run by way of Beaufort and thence up the inland waterway to Baltimore. This indicates Newbern's live appreciation of the opportunities which this great navigation scheme will afford, and speaking of it the Baltimore Sun says in an editorial under the title of "Baltimore to Beaufort:"

"The Albemarle and Chesapeake canal opens a waterway from Baltimore through the North Carolina sounds to Beaufort, N. C. Removal of tolls, for the canal will be free when acquired by the government, will tend at once to stimulate navigation. Deepening of the canal from nine to twelve feet will be a big improvement. Dredging has been going on for years in Pamlico and Core Sounds and an excellent twelve-foot channel now leads to Beaufort, where the harbor has been dredged and new docks are being built. Nearby a splendid 'harbor of refuge' is being constructed at Cape Lookout.

"The projected line of steamers from Newbern is the first of numerous other lines that will in time connect Baltimore with thriving North Carolina towns like Elizabeth City, Edenton, Washington and Morehead City. Small boats can avoid the dangers of Cape Hatteras and the shoals along the Carolina coast and, reaching the open sea near Beaufort, proceed to Charleston.

"This is the first link in the Inland Waterways chain. The Cape Cod canal, now nearing completion, will give a direct inner route from Boston, through Long Island Sound to New York. The Delaware and Raritan canal crosses New Jersey and reaches the Delaware, and the Chesapeake and Delaware canal furnishes access to Chesapeake Bay and thence to this city.

"So Baltimore will soon have inland water routes to the North and the South for hundreds of miles, opening up a vast territory to steamers of light draft and smaller boats. Especially will the Southern route be beneficial, giving access to a prosperous territory in which our trade is already established and which is capable of large development."

The first cut on the inland waterway was finished a year ago by the government near Beaufort and it is now being used by small vessels going into two or three hundred miles of navigable water to the north and inside of Hatteras. Wilmington will be on this great inland navigation route, and it would not require any great length of time of finish the cuts that would make it possible for inland navigation from this city to Baltimore. It takes in Newbern, Beaufort, Morehead, Washington, Edenton, Elizabeth City, Norfolk, Baltimore and many considerable sound settlements en route.

Between Wilmington and Baltimore there is an immense territory of great fertility, and navigation is destined to bring about the development of a North Carolina region now practically isolated from the trade centres. Through the efforts of Senator Simmones and Congressman Small, of North Carolina, the first work on the canal was done in this State, and the great inland navigation scheme is now one of the fixed waterway projects of the United States. It is a waterway next in importance to the Panama canal, and it is hoped the government will rush the work at this end so Wilmington can take part in developing the great inland commerce that is to spring up as fast as the waterway is opened to traffic.

North Carolina will have a greater mileage of the inland waterway than any other State, and its completion to Wilmington at as early a day as possible will go a long way towards helping to relieve North Carolina of freight discrimination. Some of our up State contemporaries are having a great deal to say about Congressional appropriations being regarded as that much "graft" but we cannot imagine that any North Carolinian seriously interested in developing the State, or any portion of it will create the impression that the government improvement of harbors and waterways in North Carolina is a waste of public money. As a matter of fact, it is an investment by the government, for the commerce already developed pays a tremendous dividend on all expenditures ever made for that purpose.

Development of a thirty-foot channel at Wilmington and the opening and deepening of all the State's navigable waters is the greatest constructive work that could be done for North Carolina by any delegation the State might send to Washington. Especially is it not a case of graft as to North Carolina, for this State is one of eight States which pays directly into the United States Treasury more internal revenue taxes than all the other States combined. It gets back for waterways and public buildings but a mere bagatelle of what it pays in directly, not to mention the millions paid by North Carolina people through the indirect tariff tax which affects every inhabitant from the infant's go-cart to the man who whisks about in a touring car.

We do not take seriously this talk of "graft," for it would indicate a lack of intelligent conception of even justice for North Carolina in the redistribution of National aid for internal developments in the various States. States which do not pay in a cent of internal revenue tax, already are getting their share of what North Carolina pays annually to the tune of many millions. North Carolina will expect her representatives to get every cent they can from Congress for rivers, harbors, and buildings, for then she will be getting back only a small part of what is hers by right of what she does for the government by reason of her great revenue-producing resources.

TELLING TALES OUT OF SCHOOL.

There is an old story about "telling tales out of school," and it is well known how wonderfully potential tattling is for "breaking up" a school, any kind of school, even a "school for scandal." Where two men of the same party turn on each other and begin to tell tales on each other, the party cat is sure to be let out of the bag, in a way illustrating the old adage to the effect that when thieves fall out they are sure to give each other away. Of course, politicians may not be thieves, but when they lock horns they are sure to give each other away and furnish evidence against their party as well as themselves.

We have a distinguished example in the fight between Roosevelt and Taft over the Republican nomination and its result in disrupting the Republican party. Democrats have every reason to be gleeful and even hilarious over their exchange of individual exposures and certain resultant disclosures which show that the Republican party is so intolerable that the Bull Moose and probably a majority of the rank and file of the party have quit it outright in the midst of a Presidential campaign.

The Republican ship really has gone on the breakers because it had two men who insisted on steering the party. The party did not get the bumps because a great difference in principle existed when the struggle was on in Chicago, but the disruption has come because of the ambition of two men who had "records" and who got mad and told on each other. Wherefore, we get the political lesson that "records" fare badly when the day of impeachment begins.

The lesson teaches that a candidate with what he thinks is a good record ought to depend on it without attempting to weaken the record of others in order to bolster up his own cause. We have never seen any record that was free from attack on account of errors of judgment, mistaken acts, failures to act, and commission and omission of action that may suit some and disgruntle others. It is evident, therefore, that records showing a maximum of efficiency and achievement ought to be let alone for opposition parties to attack, and it may as well be said that what Democrats do to Republican records and what Republicans do to Democratic records is a plenty.

Records viewed through partisan spectacles, with prejudiced eyes, or with selfish motives, are all "no good", according to the point of view. When there are sure to be malicious, plausible, justifiable, or strong attacks on the records of political opponents, it is the worst kind of politics for members of the same party to attack each other's records, unless, perhaps they are guilty of some penitentiary offense.

It is mighty easy for a fellow to be proud of his own record, but there are always flaw prickers, who, after the manner of an attorney for the prosecution, can make a mighty good showing in upsetting the defense. Some men have the gift of manipulating, twisting, contorting, belittling, misrepresenting, and destroying records, but since it is an easy matter to puncture most records it is safer to let the opposition insert the bodkin. If one political party can make a good defense against the other it is lucky, but when a party's own leaders and members turn State's evidence and furnish the enemy with the ammunition, there need be no surprise at the necessity for a party to go on the defensive.

The party which is "in" is always on the defensive, because the opposition party is on the aggressive to get it out. The officeholder who is "in" is always on the defensive because somebody else who wants his office is working on the outside with either a jimmy, a crow bar or a high explosive. When an officeholder boasts of what he has done he can rest assured that some office-seeker will come forward to show what he has neglected to do or will try to prove that what he did do was wrong or rotten.

Our observation of all sorts of records, good, bad and indifferent, is that if a politician has a really good record it ought to be sufficient for him to get in on without sitting down on some other fellow's record. Men with records are pretty much in the same attitude as folks who live in glass houses. Those who attack records may have their own assailed if they start something. Then comes the painful realization that when all hands throw mud, even an innocent bystander is likely to get his.

When the friends of Alexander Stephens urged him to attack his opponent in order to win, his reply was, "I tote my own skillet." In other words, the great Georgia commoner and philosopher depended upon himself and did not count much upon wiping out the other man's skillet. In fact, wiping out the other fellow's skillet is no sign that yours does not need a mopping.

WOMEN IN THE CAMPAIGN.

Mrs. Euna Clum Atwood, editor of the Southport News, returned yesterday from a ten days' trip to New York. While in the metropolis she visited National Democratic headquarters, and she says it is marvelously inspiring to observe the groundswell proportions of the movement to elect Woodrow Wilson President. She declares that the Wilson sentiment in New York is simply immense and absolutely irresistible, and that it permeates all classes of voters and people. The enthusiasm is contagious, and thousands of women are among the Democratic nominee's earnest supporters and workers. The ladies are taking keen interest in politics, and their intelligent grasp of the political issues is manifest in all circles.

The Wilson Tariff Exhibit in Union Square is wonderfully striking and comprehensive, Mrs. Atwood says. Last Friday was "Ladies' Day" at the exhibition, where the actual goods and commodities are shown, first cost prices displayed, the tariff figures presented and explained, and the whole added to the prices as they are paid by consumers. At the Friday exhibit the auditorium swarmed with women and men, and the interest was intense. Mrs. John Sherwin Crosby, president of the Woman's National Democratic Association, presided. A number of speeches were made by able and well posted women, among those addressing the audience including Mrs. Eva Valesh, editor of The Club Woman; Mrs. Keys, secretary of the Woman's National Democratic Association, and others.

Mrs. Atwood herself was one of the speakers and it can be ventured that none was more appreciative of the tariff subject or more enthusiastic over Wilson than Southport's lady editor. She says the impression in New York is that Wilson will win in a walk. Political conditions are so tangled and the issues are of such a grave and varying nature, that hope is centered in Wilson for a solution of the vexed problems that present a crisis in the politics of this country.

Progressiveism originated in the Democratic party in 1906, and later some of its good features were advocated inside the Republican party by such statesmen as Senators LaFollette and Cummins. They wished to reform their party and not to destroy it. However, Col. Roosevelt caught on to the drift of things, and made it impossible for the Republican party to reform itself along sane lines. He has also played havoc with real progressiveism in his own party by making it stand for the robber tariff and the legalization of monopoly by the government. There isn't any progressiveism in that. Monopolies which oppress the people and restrain trade are unlawful because they constitute conspiracies under the Sherman Anti-Trust Act. Any party which proposes to justify and perpetuate wrong is not only not progressive but it is dangerous to American institutions. The Democratic party is the only really progressive party to which the people can look for relief. That ought to be plain to every sensible man. Republicanism is bad enough but Rooseveltism is ten times worse.

The Kansas Progressive electors, who have been holding on as Republican nominees, are at last about to get off the Republican ticket. However, they held on long enough to show that their actions were in no wise controlled by the "Thou Shalt Not Steal" plank stolen from the Ten Commandments.

CURRENT COMMENT.

These statements by Republican leaders professing unbounded confidence in the result make it plain why the G. O. P. elephant is pictured without tusks. The ivory is in his head.—Columbia State.

If the Hon. Thomas Settle must debate why not have it out with Iredell Meares? Iredell is the nominee of two parties, each supporting a different National platform, and has only left the Hon. Tom with a fragment of the Republicans.—Raleigh News and Observer.

North Carolina is going to keep on fooling with the primary business until some day the Democratic party will be cut up into two parts. Anything is bad when it causes even friction in the ranks. After friction comes a genuine rucus—a split. Pull together if success is desired.—Greensboro Record.

The work of completing the Charlotte link of the Norfolk Southern Railroad, is now under way. The grading forces are within three miles of Charlotte and the contracting squads are building toward each other in both directions between Charlotte and Norwood. The contract is on a 10-monhts' limit, but it is always safe to count on an extension of a month or two. The Observer believes, however, that it is in position to say that the Norfolk Southern trains will be running into Charlotte by October, 1913, or a little over one year from date. This will not be record railroad building, but it will be reasonably expeditious construction work, such as has characterized the Norfolk Southern management.—Charlotte Observer.

BITTER DISAPPOINTMENT.

(Charlotte News.)

What bitter disappointment must fill the hearts of all Simmons haters, when reading the stale charges repeated by Colliers' this week against Senator Simmons!

All hands have been expecting something really sensational, something rich, rare and racy, some damning evidence of Simmons' perfidy; some proof that Simmons had looted a safe, scuttled a ship, slit a girt, or murdered an enemy.

Everything was held in abeyance until Colliers' shot its load. And now we have it—the same old lumber tariff charge and the Gibson-Gardner story, gleaned by eavesdropping.

By the way, what does Colliers' think of the Democratic platform now? Simmons stands on it.

In view of Colliers' attack, can that paper say as much?

LAMBASTING SIMMONS.

(Charlotte News.)

Colliers' has at length "shot its load," via the Mark Sullivan Washington Bureau route.

It is the same old story, picturing Simmons as a reactionary, questioning his democracy and accusing him of complicity with such men as Aldrich.

We fancy that Mr. Sullivan has been absent from Washington during recent months, when Simmons has been waging one of the most notable battles for Democratic tariff reform the Senate has ever known.

Is that the solution, or is Mr. Sullivan just one of those, blinded by prejudice, who refuses to see?

Nevertheless, the time has not come when Mr. Sullivan, or any other foreign assailant of the senior Senator, will be able to read good North Carolina Democrats out of the party.

JURY FOR HOLLY MURDER CASE

Panel Completed at 8 O'Clock Last Night—Not All Venire Exhausted—Negro Sentenced to Electrocution—Trial.

A long distance telephone message to The Star last night from Burgaw states that the jury in the Holly case was completed at 8 o'clock last night in Pender Superior Court and that the taking of testimony will begin on Monday morning. It was stated last night that likely all the week would be required to complete the case.

Not all the venire of 400 was exhausted in the selection of the jury, a detail that was looked carefully after by the attorneys on either side. In the prosecution of the case, the solicitor is assisted by Messrs. Bland & Bland, of the Pender bar, while in addition to his regular counsel, Messrs. Wm. J. Bellamy and C. D. Weeks, of the Wilmington bar, are being assisted by C. E. McCullen, of the Burgaw bar. Every inch of ground in the selection of the jurors was contested and both sides express themselves pleased with the panel as constituted.

The defendant Holly is in jail at Burgaw and it is stated that he is holding his own in a remarkable way and expresses confidence in the outcome of the trial.

On Friday of the past week in Pender Superior Court Arthur Johnson, colored, was convicted of killing his wife in the town of Burgaw about four months ago and was sentenced to be electrocuted in the State's prison on November 9th. This will be the first execution in the history of Pender county. Dick Gause, of New Hanover, was sentenced to death several terms ago, but he secured a commutation of sentence.

PROPOSED HARBOR OF REFUGE

Work on the Big Project at Cape Lookout Will Soon Begin

The harbor of refuge which is to be provided by the government at Cape Lookout will be built under the supervision of Maj. H. W. Stickle, United States Engineer in charge of this district, with headquarters in Wilmington. The government is to spend $3,500,000 on the project and the work of making surveys will be commenced next week. The gigantic breakwater, which is to make the harbor of refuge, is to be built from the point of Cape Lookout south, extending a mile and a half to two miles. The actual construction work will be commenced by January 1st, next, it is thought. There is available to begin the work $300,000 and Congress will likely increase the appropriation from time to time until the project is completed.

Work on the foundation for the locks to be constructed on the Cape Fear river at King's Bluff, near East Arcadia, is progressing very satisfactorily under the direction of Engineer John D Spinks. In a short time work on the locks will be started. The locks and dams in the Cape Fear between Wilmington and Fayetteville are being constructed in order to give a depth of eight feet in the channel all the year round.

RURAL TEACHERS MEET.

First Session of the Present School Year Held Yesterday.

The first meeting of the New Hanover County White Teachers' Association of the present school year was held yesterday morning at the Court House with 16 of the 20 rural teachers of the county in attendance. Prof. Washington Catlett, county superintendent of public instruction, was re-elected president and Miss Sallie O. Edwards, of Masonboro school, was elected secretary. Prof. M. C. S. Noble, head of the department of pedagogy at the State University, was present, having arrived on a late train Friday night to spend the week-end, and he made a most interesting and instructive address. Following his remarks Prof. Catlett made the teachers a short talk, in which he discussed what it is hoped the association will accomplish this year and gave an outline of the books which are to be studied in the teachers' study circle. The meetings adjourned about noon.

CLOSE CONGRESSIONAL RACE

Both Turnbull and Watson Claim Victory In Fourth Virginia

Petersburg, Va., Sept. 21.—With returns in eight precincts missing in the Fourth Congressional district primary today, both Turnbull and Watson forces, from estimates based on returns received up to midnight, claim the election. An official count will be necessary to determine the result.

The Turnbull forces give Mr. Turnbull, incumbent, renomination by 262 majority. Watson's claim is 40 majority. Turnbull carried Petersburg by 322 and carried five counties.

Judge Watson carried seven counties. Judge Watson a year ago gained National prominence in presiding at the trial of Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., who was convicted of wife murder in Chesterfield county.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 21.—The Fourth district primary vote as reported unofficially up to midnight, with eight precincts missing give Turnbull 3,317; Watson 3,308.

MARKET & SUPPLY CO.

Organization Meeting of New Concern Held Friday Afternoon

The organization meeting of the stockholders of the Wilmington Market & Supply Company, which was recently chartered, was held Friday afternoon at which time the stockholders elected the following well-known business men as the board of directors: J. A. Taylor, R. R. Stone, J. H. Rehder, B. F. Keith and C. N. Evans.

At a meeting of the board of directors held immediately after the adjournment of the stockholders' meeting, the following officers were elected: President, Mr. J. A. Taylor; vice presirent, Mr. R. R. Stone; treasurer, Mr. C. N. Evans; general manager, Capt. Thomas Duggan.

The principal business of the company is to furnish supplies of all kinds to ships and vessels in the port of Wilmington, but the company will also maintain an up-to-date retail meat business and cater to the trade of the city generally.

DELGADO BAPTIST CHURCH

New Building Will Be Used This Afternoon for First Time

The new church building of the Baptist church at Delgado will be used for the first time today. Rev. M. O. Alexander, assistant pastor of the First Baptist church, will preach at 11 A. M. and 3 P. M.; the Sunday School will celebrate the completion of the new building by the rendition of a pleasing programme. The programme as announced, will be as follows:

Instrumental voluntary by Delgado orchestra.
Long Metre Doxology by the school.
Prayer by Dr. J. H. Foster.
Address by Mr. Geo. E. Leftwich, superintendent.
Sunbeam song by the choir of 12 little girls, as follows: Mary Sniper, Ruth Allen, Rena Rogers, Ruth Walker, Lucy Gainey, Dosher Walker, Alma Hester, Romena Evans, Margaret Ward, Mattie Hart, Annie Pridgen, Adell Davis.
Recitation by Emma Walker and Roselie Hester.
Song No. 143 by the choir.
Recitation by Ruth Allen.
Duet, "Someone is Looking to You," Mrs. G. T. Keen and Miss Nora Rackley.
Recitation and song, "What Is the Best," by six girls.
Recitation, "The Skeptic's Daughter," by Pearl Grady.
Song No. 130 by the choir.
"Gleams of the Gospel," by Elsie Wallace, Rosa Gainey, Liddie Walker, Ida Hayer, Nora Rackley.
Song, "Children Pray," by Ruth Allen and Mattie Hart.
Collection.
Song No. 143 by choir.
Benediction.

The accompanist for the occasion will be Mrs. G. T. Keen. Mr. Archie Fryer will preside. Members of the orchestra are Mr. C. L. Skipper, cornetist and Mr. Bennie Riggs, violinist. The citizens of Delgado and the other Sunday Schools are cordially invited to be present.

ANNIVERSARY OF ORDER.

Letitia Lodge, Daughters of Rebekah, Celebrated Last Night.

With a large attendance and very appropriate exercises, Letitia Lodge, No. 3, Daughters of Rebekah, last night celebrated the 61st anniversary of the founding of this branch of Odd Fellowship. The exercises were held in the Odd Fellows' Hall, corner Third and Princess streets. Officers of the lodge taking part in the celebration were Miss Bertha Devaun, Noble Grand; Mrs. Bettie Holmes, Vice Grand; Miss Ruby Rogers, Chaplain; Miss May Landen, Past Noble Grand; Mrs. Mabel Garrison, secretary. Miss Annie Gaskill favored the assemblage with a solo, "Dreams of Long Ago," which was well received. Mr. S. A. Matthews gave a recitation that was so pleasing he was forced to respond to an encore. Mrs. Garrison read an interesting paper on "Rebekah of Thumberland," and another fine paper was read by Mrs. H. O. Thomas, on "Our Emblems."

Following the rendition of the programme dainty refreshments were served. The hall was attractively decorated with golden rod. The occasion was one of the most enjoyable given by the lodge in recent months.

NEGRO ACTOR ARRESTED

Frank Tansel Charged With Kidnapping Young Negro Girl

Frank Tansel, colored, one of the leading performers at the Queen Theatre at Eighth and Queen streets, was arrested last night by Deputy Sheriff Davis on a warrant charging him with kidnapping Noxie Williams, colored, the 13-year-old daughter of Lina Williams, who made the affidavit upon which the warrant was issued. It is alleged that the girl disappeared Friday and when last seen was in the company of Tansel, who, it is claimed, had been trying to persuade her to leave home and join a vaudeville show in another town. The mother says that she thinks the defendant kidnapped her daughter Friday and sent her away. Tansel was committed to jail in default of $500 bond to await preliminary hearing before Justice Harriss. Kidnapping is a felony in this State and if convicted the defendant would be sentenced to the State penitentiary.

Disturbing Meeting Charged.

Thomas LaMoyne and Dan Peebles, colored, charged with carrying concealed weapons and disturbing a lawful meeting, were arrested yesterday and in default of bond were lodged in jail to await trial before Justice Harriss Wednesday. LaMoyne was arrested early in the afternon in the city by Deputy Sheriffs Davis and Reynolds and later in the afternoon Peebles was arrested at his home at Wrightsboro by Sheriff Cowan, who was accompanied by Deputy Sheriffs Davis and Reynolds. It is aleged that the defendants disturbed a sociable held by the colored people at Wrightsboro Thursday night by shooting pistols and talking in a loud and boisterous manner.

ALL BIDS WERE REJECTED

Proposals for New Y. M. C. A. Did Not Come Within Amount It is Desired to Expend—Further Bids Asked.

Bids for the new Y. M. C. A. building to be erected on Market street, next east of the Colonial Hotel, were opened yesterday morning by the building committee, but as all the proposals exceeded by several thousand dollars the amount it is desired to expend on the structure, the boards of directors and trustees in joint session in the afternoon, upon recommendation of the building committee, rejected all bids and instructed the architects to further revise the plans and that new bids be called for in accordance with the changed plans. The general plans of the building will remain the same, but some minor changes will be made that will greatly reduce the cost of the structure.

The bids were opened at 11 o'clock. All members of the building committee, ex-Mayor Wm. E. Springer, chairman, L. W. Moore, secretary, and Col. Walker Taylor, being present, as well as Secretary J. B. Huntington, of the Y. M. C. A., and a number of interested citizens. There were three bidders, these being Boyle & Robertson, of Wilmington; King Lumber Co., Charlottesville, Va.; Frank L. Wagner, Washington, D. C. All of the bids were slightly in excess of $100,000. After the bids had been opened and publicly read the committee went into executive session at which it was decided to recommend that all bids be rejected and asked for a joint meeting of the two boards for 4:30 o'clock.

Dr. Joseph Akerman, president of the association, presided at the joint meeting in the afternoon and in attendance were Dr. E. J. Wood, J. T. King, W. A. McGirt, J. W. Simpson, K. W. Price, Virginius Hall, L. W Moore and J. A. McGeachy, of the board of directors, and ex-Mayor Wm. E. Springer and W. M. Cumming, of the board of trustees. After considerable discussion of the entire matter the recommendation of the building committee was accepted. The firm of Shattucks & Hussey, architects, of Chicago, who drew the plans, were instructed to make certain minor changes and bids will be called for according to the revised plans. It is thought that the plans will be revised and ready for the bidders again in 10 or 12 days. Mr. Shattucks was present at the meetings yesterday.

It is expected that the contract will be awarded within the next few weeks and that work will be commenced shortly thereafter.

WILMINGTON MAY ENTER

Formation of Strictly Carolina Baseball Association Probable

There is a very strong probability that a baseball league composed of six of the leading cities in the State will be formed for the 1913 season and Wilmington stands a good chance of being one of the six. The directors of the Carolina Association, composed of three towns in North Carolina and three in South Carolina, will meet in Charlotte Tuesday of this week for the purpose of winding up the affairs of the 1912 season and for mapping out preliminary plans for the 1913 season. It is not unlikely that the South Carolina towns will be dropped and a strictly North Carolina association will be formed. In which event the league would probably be composed of Charlotte, Winston-Salem, Greensboro, members of the present association, and Durham, Raleigh and Wilmington. Local fans hope that such a circuit will be formed and feel confident that it would be a financial success because all the places mentioned are good ball towns.

MR. OLDHAM PURCHASES HOME

Turlington Property on Third Street Acquired by Wilmingtonian

The popular proprietor of the Wilmington Cigar Co., Mr. James A. Oldham, yesterday purchased through Mr. W. R. Stewart, of Wright's Real Estate Agency, the Turlington property on Third, between Walnut and Red Cross streets. Mr. Oldham will move into the home and will very shortly improve the house. The property faces 40 feet on Third street and runs back 150 feet to an alley in the rear. It contains a large, comfortable house and the purchase price is understood to have been approximately $6,000.

Assault on His Wife.

Charged with assault on a female, his wife, W. A. Herndon, who lives at the southwest corner of Second and Dock streets, was arrested at 7:25 o'clock last night by Patrolman H. R. Smith, who was attracted to the home by the calls for help by Mrs. Herndon. Officers stated that Herndon appeared to be drinking. He was lodged in the city prison, but it was stated that he would probably be released as soon as his condition improved.

Death Near Maxton.

Yesterday afternoon's Fayetteville Observer: "We are informed that Mr. P. McL. Alford, a prominent planter living near Maxton, died at his home very suddenly last night. Mr. Alford was apparently in his usual good health and ate a hearty supper but shortly afterward went into his room, lay down and expired in a few minutes. He is survived by a wife and daughter."

Wright SELLS LOTS

Rents more than a thousand houses, stores and apartments. Nearly everything in our agency is already rented and contract signed. In the comfortable and beautiful Carolina Apartment House there is a housekeeping and a bachelor's apartment not now rented. If you want a comfortable home, steam heat, double elevator service and all modern conveniences at the most reasonable rate that such conveniences can be had—you had best see this apartment at once. Heat, artesian water, sewerage, janitor service, elevator and dumb waiter service, cafe in building and choicest location in city—is what you get in the Carolina Apartments, with the best of neighbors for company.

The past week has been a busy week in the sales department. Our five salesmen have been busy turning "dirt into dollars" and exactly six sales have been wound up—money paid and deed recorded.

Confidence in our ability to know the real value and confidence in our rule to stick to real facts, account for the activity of our agency.

Today we have a particularly pretty bungalow built of cement block—just a mile and a half from the city on the Carolina Beach road. The lot has 90 feet frontage, and is 300 feet deep. The water is good, the land fertile and the price and terms in reach of the salaried man. If you want a five-room suburban home, let us take you out to see this.

What will the new Y. M. C. A. building do for the Northwest corner of Third and Market? Cannot you see a handsome store, an apartment house or hotel here? The finest undeveloped corner in Wilmington. We have a low price and reasonable terms to offer now—the price is going up.

There's a new house on South Fourth street between Ann and Nun, that is beautiful inside and out. It's going to be sold this week. If a seven-room house in good location is what you want—see this.

Another good place is 511 South Front street and 116 Church street. This is a splendid location, and we will be glad to give you first hand, real facts.

It will be very much better to call and see us Monday. Try it.

Stop it. Buy yourself a nice cottage in a good neighborhood and revel in the delights of "Home, Sweet Home."

It's exasperating to feel that you have to "toe the mark" regularly each month as the rent comes due, just to keep a roof over your head, and again, just consider how uncomfortable is the idea of getting a house each year that rolls around.

Better buy a Home of D. R. FOSTER & CO. We will help you finance the deal. At No. 505 So. Second St., is a cottage that can be bought at a very close figure. No. 116 Church St., is a very attractive cottage also.

Stedman, N. C., Sept. 21.—On the morning of September 18th, a quiet but beautiful wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Geddie, when their daughter, Miss Susan Geddie, became the bride of Mr. T. J. Herring, of Roseboro. When the chords from Mendelssohn's march were masterfully sounded by Miss Neta Geddie, the wedding party approached the altar: Miss Gene Herring, of Dunn, with Dr. C. H. Geddie, of Winston-Salem; Miss Rena Geddie with Mr. Joe Herring, of Clinton; Miss Elizabeth Jerome, of Rose Hill, with Mr. Joe McPhail, of Fayetteville; the groom with Mr. George Hall, of Red Springs; the bride with Miss Emma Pegram, of Stedman. When the bridesmaids, daintily attired in white lingerie dresses, carrying lovely bouquets of roses and ferns, the maid of honor in soft blue satin; the bride, becomingly gowned in a blue cloth suit with bride's roses, and the men in conventional black, were arranged around the altar so artistically made of ferns and palms beneath festoons of green, Rev. J. D. Pegram performed the ceremony, using the ring service. The bride wore a cameo necklace studded with pearls, the gift of the groom. Immediately after the ceremony the entire party went by autos to Fayetteville, where Mr. and Mrs. Herring, amid showers of roses and hearty congratulations, left by rail for an extended trip North. After an absence of two weeks, they will be at home to their friends in Roseboro, N. C.

MARRIAGE IN MISSISSIPPI OF INTEREST LOCALLY.

Many friends in Wilmington will read with interest the following account of the marriage of Mr. William G. James, of this city, and Miss Leila James, of Biloxi, Miss., which appeared in the Gulfport, Miss., Daily Herald of Wednesday, September 18th:

"Biloxi, Sept. 18.—The marriage of Miss Leila James and William Graham James, of Wilmington, N. C., was solemnized at the Church of the Redeemer this morning at 7:30 o'clock by Rev. C. B. Crawford in the presence of the relatives of the bride and a few intimate friends. Miss Marceline Peleaz was at the organ. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Hettie James, and the best man was Allen H. Borden, of New Orleans, a friend of the bridegroom and a former resident of Wilmington. The bride wore a traveling suit of blue and carried white roses.

"Mr. and Mrs. James left on the early train for Mobile where they will stop to visit friends and relatives. From Mobile they will leave later today for Washington and New York.

"While unostentatious, the ceremony was beautifully carried out and was most impressive. No more ideal spot could be found than the Church of the Reedemer for so sacred an occasion, this church having been where President Jefferson Davis worshipped during his residence at Beauvoir, near Biloxi.

"The bride is the charming daughter of Capt. H. C. James, of this city, and has a host of loyal admiring friends in Biloxi, whose earnest wishes for her happiness will follow her.

"The bridegroom is a leading business man of Wilmington, being engaged in the real estate business.

"Mr. and Mrs. James will return to Wilmington about October 1st, and will be at home at Carolina Heights."

Mr. James is the eldest son of the late Col. Thos. C. James and Mrs. James and many friends in Wilmington will congratulate him on winning so fair a bride.

A crowd quickly gathered and it is said that several persons finally became involved in the affair. However, none of those in the store at the time would give the police any information and no arrest was made.

New Savings Bank?

It was currently reported yesterday that a new savings bank is to be organized within the next feew weeks. While nothing definite could be learned, it was reported that a number of prominent business men are back of the movement and that there is every probability that it will materialize. This would make eight banking institutions for Wilmington.

FAYETTEVILLE "INDEPENDENTS"

Three Factions of the "Body Politic" Get Together in Cumberland

(Special Star Telegram.)

Fayetteville, N. C., Sept. 21.—The much-heralded anti-Democratic conventions here today proved a frosted farce. Five disgruntled Democrats from some country precinct met in response to a call for a citizens' meeting. The Bull Moosers fined them and called it "progressive."

The Republicans for revenue only entered. This congregation numbering 68 styles itself a "progressive citizens' mass meeting" and after much declining named a county ticket containing one ex-Democrat for treasurer and the balance Republicans, most of whom are sons of former Populist leaders. The independent candidate for sheriff declined the convention's endorsement. The ticket is conceded the weakest named here since reconstruction days.

French Market Coffee Is the National Drink of the South

EVEN when French Market Coffee could be had nowhere but at the old French Market in New Orleans—a hundred years ago—it was widely known.

Andrew Jackson, Henry Clay and the gallants of the old South were enthusiastic lovers of this rare old French coffee. Today the identical, historic French blend is perpetuated by a

Unique Hygienic Roasting Process

and genuine old French Market Coffee is packed in air-tight, hermetically-sealed tins and delivered anywhere in the world in all its freshness and delicious aroma.

In the South, especially, so great is the demand for French Market Coffee that it has become "The National Drink of the South."

French Market Coffee Unlike All Others

The smooth, exhilarating quality of French Market Coffee is totally unlike ordinary coffees.

The French Market Mills have the great advantage of the first selection of the best of the Pan-American coffees.

These fine coffees have never been exposed to the injurious effects of a cold northern climate. The berries are rich in everything that goes to make a perfect coffee.

French Market Coffee

Perfect Process of Roasting and Packing

The celebrated French Market Coffee process is quite different from the ordinary roast. It drives out a larger percentage of gums and oils, while retaining and intensifying all the aromatic and beneficial qualities of the coffee bean.

The grinding is done at exactly the right time to hold the full, delicious flavor that has always been such a feature of French Market Coffee.

The market-men of the French Market think nothing of drinking 10 to 15 cups a day of this deliciously aromatic and refreshing beverage.

At Your Grocer's—in Air-Tight Tins

But you must be sure to get the genuine with the picture of the French Market on the can.

Try it once, and you'll agree "There is only one real old French Market flavor."

Easy to Get Rid of Dandruff And Stop Hair From Falling

Parisian Sage Hair Tonic Will Make Any Person's Hair Luxuriant and Fascinating.

LOOK OUT FOR IMITATIONS.

Give Parisian Sage a chance to drive every particle of disgusting dandruff from your hair.

Give it a chance to soak into the hair roots and stop the hair from falling out.

You won't be sorry if you do—you'll be dandruff dirty all your life if you don't.

And when you get a bottle of Parisian Sage you are not throwing any money away, because it is guaranteed to eradicate dandruff; to stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks, or money back.

It is not a dye and does not contain poisonous lead; if you think lead that colors the hair is safe to use ask your doctor or druggist.

Parisian Sage kills the dandruff germ because of its peculiar power to get to the roots of the hair; right where the germs thrive and multiply.

But besides killing ths germs it supplies nourishment to the hair; stops it from falling out, and causes it to grow thick and luxuriant.

Parisian Sage is a most delightful hair dressing, not sticky or greasy. A large bottle for only 50 cents at druggists, department stores and toilet goods counters everywhere. Robt. R. Bellamy guarantees it.

Dear Amy:—

I've been to see Laura. You remember she and her husband stayed with us one night. She and Billy both liked my home so well that Billy "loosened up" and told Laura to go down town and buy all the furniture she wanted.

Laura has just fitted out her house from the front door of the hall to the back door of the kitchen. She is the happiest woman in town. With love, LOU.

P. S.—Laura asked me where to buy. Knowing she would get good, strong, stylish furniture at lowest prices, I of course sent her to:

COTTON PRICES UNCHANGED

The Market Received Its First Official Frost Prediction, But No Aggressive Buying Developed —Unsettled at Close

New York, Sept. 21.—The cotton market received its first official frost prediction of the season today, but with no aggressive buying developing a moderate rally was barely maintained with the close steady, net one point higher to five points lower.

The market opened steady at unchanged prices, to a decline of one point under week-end realizing. Prices eased off to a net loss of 6 or 7 points on the active months during the first few minutes, but when the Western belt forecast was received calling for colder weather and frost, the selling became less active and the market rallied to about yesterday's closing on covering or some fresh buying for long account. The talk, however, reflected little apprehension that temperature would materially hurt the crop and the market in the later trading was unsettled with the close 4 to 5 points off from the best.

Spot cotton closed quiet. Middling uplands, 11.85; do. gulf, 12.10; no sales.

Cotton futures closed steady.

THE CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Expected Heavy World Shipments of Wheat Was Not Offset By the Threshing Delays and Crop Damage—Bearish Effect

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Threshing delays here and crop damage in Canada, proved insufficient today to offset in the wheat market the bearish effect of expected heavy world shipments and an increase in the United States visible supply. Closing prices were easy 1-8 to 5-8 under last night. Corn varied from 1-2 cent decline to 1-4 cent advance; oats finished 1-8 to 1-4 off to 3-4 up and provisions 15 to 17 1-2 lower.

STOCK MARKET VERY ACTIVE

Volume of Business on the Exchange Yesterday Was Uncommonly Large for Week-end—Old Time Favorites Strong

New York, Sept. 21.—On a volume of business uncommonly large for a week-end, today's two-hour session of the stock market was very active.

The market was perhaps less broad than yesterday's speculation, centering largely around the old-time favorites, such as U. S. Steel, which established another high record for the year, Reading and Union Pacific. Lehigh Valley also rose smartly on advices pointing to excellent trade conditions.

Steel was assisted by the higher price for pig iron and certain finished products. Other industrials that manifested marked strength included General Electric, American Smelting and some of the metal shares.

In the special class, American Tobacco moved irregularly. Routine news was of a favorable character. Proof of the increased freight movement in the West was furnished by the great reduction in the number of idle cars compared with this period last year.

The bank statement showed an actual cash loss of $1,383,000, a loan contraction of over $21,000,000 and an increase of $3,751,850 in the reserves.

Bonds manifested some improvement, with large transactions in speculative issues. U. S 5's advanced 1-2 per cent on call during the week.

Total sales 330,000 shares, including: Tobacco 1,100; A. C. L. 300; C. & O. 100; L. & N. 300; N. & W. 500; Reading 66,000; Southern 3,400; do. pfd. 800; Tennessee Copper 3,500; U. S. Steel 42,000; V. C. C. 100.

WAYNE DEMOCRATS MEET.

Convention Nominates Various Officers—Simmons' Supporters Win.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Goldsboro, N. C., Sept. 21.—The Wayne County Democratic Convention convened here today at 12 o'clock. Every precinct was well represented and a strong ticket nominated. The chairman, Mr. George C. Kornegay, called Capt. Nathan O'Berry to the chair as temporary chairman and the temporary organization was made permanent by unanimous vote of the convention. The chairman proceeded to the transaction of business immediately, and nomination for the State Senate was declared in order. Jonathan Hooks, of Fremont, and Mr. Gurney Hood, of Goldsboro, were placed in nomination. After a vote Mr. Jonathan Hooks was declared the nominee for the Senate. The convention then proceeded to the nomination of the candidates for the lower House of the General Assembly. The following candidates were placed in nomination: ex-Sheriff Everett A. Stevens, R. Mintz, of Brogden township; I. J. Harrell, of Goldsboro and J. E. Kelly, of Brogden township. Ex-Sheriff Everett A. Stevens was nominated upon the first ballot, and after two more ballots Editor F. R. Mintz, of Mt. Olive, was nominated as the running mate to Sheriff Stevens.

Prior to the primaries in Goldsboro on Friday night, Septemoer 13th, no suggestion was made of injecting the Senatorial question into county politics. The friends of Senator Simmons being ignorant of any contest, did not attend the primaries. It was not known that Hood, Kelly and Harrell were candidates until the night of the city primaries, when the Kitchin forces in the city packed the primaries and sent 23 Kitchin delegates out of 26 from Goldsboro township to the county convention, all of whom voted solidly for Hood, Kelly and Harrell, the Kitchin candidates, notwithstanding the fact that Hooks, Stevens and Mintz were endorsed by petition by more than 300 representative voters in the city of Goldsboro. When this fact became known to the delegates from the country precincts, the lines were immediately drawn between Simmons and Kitchin and most of the delegates from the country precincts voted solidly for Hooks, Mintz and Stevens, who are supporters of Senator Simmons. It is evident from the result of today's convention that Senator Simmons has a safe majority in the county of Wayne.

BOY SCOUTS GETTING BUSY.

They Will Wage Campaign for Public Health and Sanitation.

Yes, these are busy school days, but the Boy Scouts all over the State are finding time to do more than go to school. Many of them are going to post telephone poles and other conspicuous places with placards against spitting and against flies. Under the direction of their Scout Masters they are going to distribute thousands of leaflets on the cause and prevention of consumption, typhoid, malaria, hookworm disease, etc., where it will do the most good. They are going to give mothers pamphlets on Care and Feeding of Babies, and teachers and school authorities will be given pamphlets on Medical Inspection of Schools, and so on.

Furthermore, in many places they are going to wage a war to the last ditch against flies and mosquitoes. Householders may therefore be on the lookout for the boys, armed with antifly and other public health literature for free distribution. From all indications the Scouts will inaugurate a campaign of public health education in a lot of towns in the State, such as these towns have never seen before.

Where will the boys get these placards and literature? The State Board of Health is backing up the Scouts. When it became known to the Scouts and Scout Masters a few days ago that the board would furnish them public health literature free of charge, if they would distribute it, the mailing clerk at the office of the board was deluged with requests for thousands of leaflets and placards. The Scouts and Scout Masters generally recognized that a golden opportunity was offered to do a great good in their community and they accepted the offer post haste. If the citizens in towns having Boy Scouts do not see anti-fly placards and "Don't Spit" placards posted around, or do not receive some free public health literature in the near future, it might be well to ask the Scout Masters why they are not onto their job.

"AUTOMATIC CITIZENS"

(Thomas R. Marshall, in the Atlantic Monthly).

There are three grades of citizens. There are those who obey the law through fear of its penalties—men who deal squarely because their lawyers tell them that they will lose money, and perhaps their liberty, if they do not. These constitute the lowest grade of citizenship. There are those who obey the law because it is the law; they have no respect for it; they regard it as crude, foolish, immaterial legislation, but their respect for constituted authority includes them to keep the letter of the law regardless of their opinion of the spirit of it. These constitute an improved class of citizens. But the citizens of the third and highest grade are the men who make for righteousness. They are the salt of the republic. These I am pleased to call automatic citizens. They are men who realize that with the right of individual success in America has come the duty of individual responsibility; that they may "go the limit" in the way of success, but that they must not injure their fellowmen. Not one of them would have demanded his pound of flesh, for he would have known that he could not get it without the shedding of Christian blood.

When a man does get even with another, he is never satisfied until he gets a little more so.

A woman has no business with a family if she can't take something old and make it over into something new.

People who are crippled in the head get less sympathy than any other cripples.

What makes a woman's clothes cost so much is they would cost a lot more if she had the money.

CREDITS IN SWITZERLAND

Agricultural Co-Operation in That Country and How Some of the Principles Might be Applied to the United States Beneficially.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—Although the great difference in conditions prevailing in Switzerland and in the United States prevents the adoption of many of the actual practices employed in that Republic for the financial assistance of the farmer, yet there is much in principle which the American farmer, at the brink of strengthening his position through the doctrine of co-operation, can learn from the farmer of Switzerland. American Minister Boutell has recently forwarded to the State Department a report upon this subject following his investigation in connection with President Taft's effort to establish co-operative credit in the United States for the benefit of the American farmer. The farmers of Switzerland are the backbone of the nation. The Government recognizes this. It is to the farmers that the country would turn if ever it became necessary for that Confederation to defend its independence. Wisely the Government has done all in its power to aid the farmer, to stiffen the backbone of the nation. Incidentally, however, the farmers have taken a hand in the question of the Government's looking to their welfare. They have made themselves a strong factor in the Government—that is, the co-operation practiced by the Swiss farmers is largely political.

Several years ago they formed an association—The Swiss Farmers' Association—and established a central bureau at Brugg. This association is represented in the Swiss National Council, corresponding to our own House of Representatives, by many prominent politicians.

One of the principal purposes of this association is more or less to fix and control the market prices of milk and other agricultural products in the interest of the farmers.

Similar associations have been established in the various Cantons (States) bearing the name of Cantonal Farmers' Association, which are members of the Swiss Farmers' Association, with the same principles and purposes as the latter. Besides the Federal and the Cantonal associations there exist a great number of local (district) farmers' co-operative societies which have as their purpose the securing of cheaper prices for seeds and fertilizers by purchasing these articles in large quantities, which are kept in storehouses and can be obtained as needed from the administrator of the respective local society.

The Federal Government can make no loans to any of the above-mentioned associations or co-operative societies, but it contributes annually an amount of 25,000 francs to the expenses of the permanent central bureau of the Swiss Farmers' Association.

In the various Cantons provisions are made to facilitate loans to farmers, against a first mortgage, up to two-thirds of the real value of the farm property.

The chief advantage secured by the farmer in placing a mortgage with the Cantonal or State mortgage banks is that he escapes the necessity of repaying the principal of his mortgage in a single payment, and he is practically relieved from the danger of foreclosure. The interest rate charged by the Cantonal mortgage banks is about the same as that collected by other banks. For instance, a farmer wishes to raise a loan of $10,000 on his property. He secures the money from the Cantonal bank at 4 1-2 per cent. He could probably do as well for himself if he went to private sources, but here is where the Cantonal banks help him out. If he went to a private bank to borrow money at 4 1-2 per cent for a stated number of years—let us say 10 years—then each year he would be per cent, and the tenth year he would required to pay that bank his 4 1-2 $10,000. Now, with the Cantonal be required to pay back the entire bank he is required to pay each year, in addition to his 4 1-2 per cent, 1 per cent as amortization. After the first payment he owes the bank $10,000 less 1 per cent. Naturally, the second year he must pay interest, not on the $10,000, but on $10,000 less 1 per cent. However, his actual payment is still 5 1-2 per cent of the $10,000. Each year, however, a large portion of this 5 1-2 per cent. is for amortization; a diminishing portion of it, as the amortization continues, is for interest. In this way the farmer ultimately pays back the entire loan without having been burdened with one big payment in any year as he ordinarily would have been. Only in very rare cases are the loans made by these mortgage banks on farm properties foreclosed.

Financial assistance is rendered by municipal, Cantonal and Federal authorities to all undertakings which have as their purpose the improvement of the soil or to facilitate its utilization.

Improvements of the soil which enjoy the financial aid of the public authorities are: Irrigation, drainage, clearance of the land, road-making, road mending, boundary walls (fencing in), and the erection of stables (shelters) on the Alps. Whenever a farmer possesses land of which the value could considerably be increased through the improvement of the soil, but can not afford the expenses for such work, he can make application for a contribution to the costs of such undertaking to the government of his Canton (State), and, through the latter, to the Federal Government. In many Cantons (States, the municipal authorities do not contribute to an improvement of the soil if by such improvement only one individual farmer would profit, whilst they contribute in those cases where a number of farmers or a corporation is concerned.

After a careful examination of the plans for the improvement, by technical experts, the Swiss Department of Agriculture presents the request, with its report, to the Federal Council; the latter then decides, on the basis of the report from the Agricultural Department and the plans, whether a contribution will be granted and fixes the amount of such contributions within the limits of the Federal law (maximum 40 per cent. of the total costs.)

For example, a farmer who possesses land of which the value could be considerably raised by improvement, partly through drainage and partly by clearance, but who has not the money to pay the costs of such improvement, can apply in the above prescribed manner direct to the cantonal government or, if he prefers, first to the municipal authorities. It may happen that the commune is poor and, therefore, the local authorities are unable to grant any contribution at all; they will, however, refer his request to the respective cantonal government (government of the State) recommending the request for favorable consideration. The cantonal government, after examination of the request and plans, decides to grant a contribution of 30 per cent to the estimated costs of improvement and, at the same time—in compliance with the desire expressed by the proprietor of the farm—refers the request to the Federal government with its report and recommendation. After due consideration of all the facts the Federal Council may decide to grant a contribution, similar to that of the Canton, namely, of 30 per cent to the total costs. Now, since the cantonal government has decided to grant a contribution of 30 per cent and the Federal government is granting one of 30 per cent (together 60 per cent) to the total costs, there would remain a balance to be paid by the farmer of only 40 per cent.

Let one assume that the farmer has invested all his money in live stock and has, at the time, no cash to pay his share of 40 per cent, but is obliged to borrow this amount from a third person. In such a case the Federal law makes it easy for him to find such a loan at low rates, because the new Swiss Civil Code provides:

"Whenever a farm property is raised in value because of the improvement of the soil, carried out with the financial aid from public authorities, the proprietor can, for his share of contribution to the said improvement, have recorded in the ground book (record of land), for the security of his creditor, a lien which comes first of all other debts of record (mortgages)." Such security, of course, makes the mortgage a very attractive investment.

In the year 1911 the Federal government contributed 1,456,764 francs to the costs of improvement of the soil (311 cases.) In the Federal budget for the year 1912 an appropriation of 1,500,000 francs is made for that purpose.

For lack of statistics it is impossible to give the amounts contributed by the various cantonal (State) governments for the improvement of farm land, but it is certain that the total amount contributed by them will be at least as high as the Federal contribution.

There are no provisions made either in the Federal or cantonal laws by which farmers' corporations would be entitled to issue bonds in order to secure money for the improvement of their land as is done in other countries.

It may be of interest to know that the Swiss Federal government, as is done by the governments of agricultural Cantons, encourages the raising of cattle for breeding purposes by appropriating every year in the budget a considerable amount for premiums to b given at the cattle shows to the raisers of the prize winning cattle—bullocks and cows.

Large improvements were made in recent years with the financial aid from the Federal and Cantonal governments and much interest is taken by the public authorities in the welfare and prosperity of the population in rural districts. It is remarkable how the prosperity of the farmers has increased in the past 15 years, which is to a great extent due to the financial assistance rendered them by the Cantonal and Federal governments in the manner prescribed in the foregoing report.

DESCENDED FROM SQUIRRELS

Prof. Smith's Interesting Theory Concerning Man's Origin

(From the New York Times).

Not the apes and monkeys, who are literally man's blood relations, but the moles, the hedgehogs and the shrews represent more nearly the type of the ancestry of the human race. The Oriental tree-shrew and the African jumping-shrew, small squirrel like animals that feed on insects and fruit sought in trees, represent today, according to Prof. G. Elliott Smith, president of the section of anthropology, in his address before the British Association, the animal that in the Cretaceaus period took a step "fraught with the most far-reaching consequences," in that it "marked the birth of the Primates and the definite branching off from the other mammals of the line of man's ancestry."

This is new. With other zoologists Professor Smith says he should be inclined to look upon the orang, the chimpanzee and the gorilla "not as ancestral forms of man, but as the more enterprising members of man's family, who not able to maintain the high level of cerebral development of the feeble-bodied human, but saved themselves from extinction by the acquisition of great strength and a certain degree of specialization of structure. The feebler man was able to overcome his enemies and maintain himself in the struggle for existence by his nimbleness and weight and his superior adaptability to varying circumstances.

In the tree-shrews, large-brained little insectivores, betraying many links with the lowliest and most primitive mammals, Professor Smith finds the enlargement of the cerebral hemisphere in which impressions might be stored "so that they may be revived." With this beginning of the means of associative memory, learning by experience was achieved among animal forms. The fish lost from the hook again seeks it, but the trapped mammal, if freed, walks more cautiously thereafter. Professor Smith says:

"I maintain that the neopallium is a feature distinctive of the mammalian brain, and that it represents in itself the unity of the apparatus concerned with psychical phenomena which Aristotle postulated as the counterpart of the unity of consciousness."

The mammal that developed into the shrew took to the trees, developing keenly the senses of vision, touch and hearing at the expense of the olfactory organs. This animal, "more intimately related to the monkeys than the tree lemurs are," became the progenitor both of apes and man. Curiously enough, Professor Smith believes that the apes lost in the race with man by the loss of their primitive characters and by too early specialization.

THEODORE'S HATCHET

The Cherry Tree Legend Revised to Date and Explained

A Boston reader of the New York Sun has the following remarks to make of a certain celebrated man and a scarcely less celebrated fable:

"Theodore having been presented by his father with a hatchet showed his gratitude by chopping down a favorite cherry tree of his father's. His father, having witnessed the act, said: Theodore, you have ruined my favorite tree.' Theodore, who even in early youth wished to do all the talking himself, at once interrupted. 'Father,' said he, 'you are various kinds of an objectionable liar. I am now on my way to the postoffice to mail a letter written to myself this morning. For the purposes of the record I dated it early last month. In this letter I say that cherries are the food of the plain people, and I instruct myself never to injure a cherry tree. I further directed myself in case I should have cut one down before receiving the letter to restore it to its original condition. No honest man can question my absolute sincerity in this matter. I have never done anything wrong. Any one suspecting me only betrays his own infinite baseness as well as that of his sisters and his cousins and his aunts.' Theodore's father turned away sadly, and Theodore producing the hatchet from under his jacket, and addressing the reporters, said: 'My hatchet knows no father. I simply slugged them over the ropes.'"

Gum camphor dissolved in alcohol will remove ink lines from tracing cloth and leave it in better condition than if mechanical erasers be used.

A VISIT TO SUNSET PARK

A Newspaper Man Goes Out to See Just Why "Everybody's Going South"—Artesian Water and Modern Conveniences

A visit to Sunset Park, the new southern sub-division to Wilmington, will be a distinct and pleasant revelation to citizens. Here is surely a spot of rare beauty, designed by nature itself as an ideal location for a high-class residential section.

The tract of 442 acres—the largest acreage by far ever handled locally for subdivision—was purchased last Winter by the Fidelity Trust and Development Company, and early this Summer they began active operations on the immense permanent improvements they had planned. An expert landscape architect was first secured, and spent a week in making a topographical survey of the property, and then planned the boulevards, streets, parkways and plazas with a view to the utilization of the natural contour and beauties of the tract to the greatest advantage. Then a skilled civil engineer was employed to lay out a perfect water and sewerage system, and other architects were in turn employed to design ornamental structures for the entrances to all three of the boulevards.

As one now approaches Sunset Park he is first delighted with a magnificent entreway, designed similar to the entrance to the famous Champ Eleysis Boulevard of Paris. The main piece extends across the entire front of the plaza, and immediately to its rear a drinking fountain will be placed. On opposite sides of the boulevard, and in line with the principal structure, are two pagodas or rest pavilions. Similar entreways will be constructed at the entrances of the two boulevards further south. Directly across Carolina Beach boulevard from the main entrance, there has been platted a beautiful eight-acre park, and a handsome little building to be called "Sunset Lodge" will be at once erected in the center of this park.

Facing the river again one looks down the full length of Northern boulevard, a beautiful winding driveway leading to the river. Immediately south and paralleling Central and 41 Farmer Residences Between City and This Tract.

Splendid Marketing and Shipping Facilities.

The Woolvin Tract of good land on Castle Hayne Turnpike will be offered for sale in lots containing about 10 acres each.

This is absolutely the Best Proposition that is on the market for the reason that it is in the GREAT TRUCKING BELT and every inch known as NORFOLK FINE SANDY LOAM, and U. S. Government experts report in part, viz.:

"Rye, oats and vetch do well and afford valuable Winter and Spring pasture, as well as hay. Lettuce, Cabbage, Beets, Turnips, Radishes, Onions, Spinach, Egg Plant, Cauliflower, Collards and a number of other Truck Crops do well on this soil."

This is identically the same class of soil as tilled by the prosperous Truck Farmers in this section, some of which have made as many as three crops and over $1,000.00 per acre per annum. And the same can be done on this valuable land.

A FARMER Must have fertile soil on which to gain his independence.

A SPECULATOR Wants fertile soil, because the good farmer wants it.

THEATRICAL

The Academy of Music will offer two big fun shows this week, and there will be three performances, as the merry, superb Cohan musical comedy "Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway," will be offered for two performances Wednesday, matinee and night. The matinee will be a popular price one, as reserved seats will be only 50 and 75 cents, while children will be admitted to any part of the theatre for 25 cents. The scale for night will run to $1.50. Seats for both performances will be on sale at Plummer's Tuesday.

Friday night of the present week the big Forbes comedy, "The Traveling Salesman", will make its first Wilmington appearance, and will, no doubt, be greeted by a big audience.

The Great Cohan Show.

The press has been especially lavish in praise of Wednesday's attraction and the following tribute comes from last Tuesday's Raleigh News and Observer:

"Bert Leigh and his big company in '45 Minutes from Broadway' appeared at the Academy of Music last night for the first time. Too much cannot be said of the success of this attraction, as it is one among the best seen here in some time. Thomas Bennett, a young millionaire, inherited by the death of his father, is about to marry a young and pretty chorus girl, who with her mother visit the estate of Bennett in New Rochelle, N. Y., which is 45 minutes from Broadway, and during her stay at the Bennett home meets Dan Cronin, an arch conspirator, who is always trying to fleece some one and through the efforts of 'Kid Burns' and 'Mary Perkins', the plans of Cronin are thwarted, and all ends happily. The plot is a good one.

"Mr. Leigh has surrounded himself with a first-class company, a corking good looking chorus of men and women, and a production that showed the earmarks of a brand new metropolis first night. As Kid Burns, he played the part of a tough New York pug, and he played it admirably, full of action and true to life. Mr. Leigh is an excellent actor and deserves much credit for his work last night. He is always welcome on his visits here. Hazel Burgess, who portrayed the part of 'Mary', is a new comer. She is young, pretty and shows much promise for a long and successful career in the musical comedy. Her two songs, 'Mary is a Grand Name,' and 'So Long Mary', are gems, and she handles them both with much grace and voice. She won many friends after rendering these two numbers, from the applause she received. Henry Roquemore, as Tom Bennett, deserves much praise in his part. He has a rich baritone voice, far above the average. Bertha Noss, as Flora Dora Dean, is exceptionally good in her portrayal of the wife-to-be, and Shirley Mayberry, as Mrs. David Dean, played her part with much emotion. The remainder of the cast is evenly balanced and are all very good. The chorus girls are very pretty, good voices, and pretty costumes. The chorus boys, also, were very neatly dressed in their many changes.

"Mr. Leigh is to be complimented on bringing such a capable company and production to this city, and it is hoped he will be an annual visitor, as his work, with both 'The Man on the Box' and '45 Minutes from Broadway' will linger long in the minds of Raleigh theatre-goers."

"The Traveling Salesman."

James Forbes' four-act comedy, "The Traveling Salesman", comes to the Academy Friday night. In this play the author has provided the traveling salesman with a vehicle just suited to Robt. Lee Allen's style of acting. As Bob Blake, the jolly drummer, whose specialty is ladies' apparel, O'Connor is said to conform in every particular to the popular conception of a traveling salesman.

The play opens on Christmas Day at Grand Crossing, a small town which exists only by virtue of the fact that two railroads intersect at that point. Blake is one of a number of salesmen who finds himself "stranded" and far from home and friends on the glad yuletide. He strolls into the railway station and immediately becomes interested in the winsome young woman in charge of the telegraph office, Beth Elliott. It is a case of love at first sight. The girl owns a piece of worthless land left her by her father. It is all she has, and it is about to be sold for taxes she is unable to pay. Royce, a pretended admirer of the girl's and a friend of Martin Drury, Blake's employer, learns that the railroad is going to buy in the land and schemes to get possession of it. He gives the story away during a poker game, but Blake blocks the game by paying the taxes. Royce denounces him to the girl, who believes he has tried to defraud her, but later when the complications are unraveled, and she becomes cognizant of the true state of affairs, she takes unto herself a husband, his signature being necessary for the transfer of the property in order to make the deed valid. She marries Blake and thereby foils her real enemies. The comedy of the play is of the most delicious character, and in it Mr. Allen has scored a great personal hit.

Seats will go on sale Thursday.

At the Bijou.

Everything is spick and span, burnished up and otherwise in readiness at the Bijou for the inauguration tomorrow of one of the biggest weeks ever. The week that closed last night was a swell one, in spite of the many inclement days. Artistically it was glorious, while from an attendance standpoint it was really tremendous in view of the weather. However, it should be realized that bad weather never keeps folks away from their favorite spot, because it is realized that the Bijou is ever delightfully comfortable and banishes dismalness.

The opening bill for the new week—to be presented tomorrow, both afternoon and night, in full details at every performance—is a great one. It will be headed by the best film of the "Broncho Billy" series, in which the noted actor, G. M. Anderson, appears. This particular one is "Brancho Billy Outwitted" and it is doubly interesting because it offers the last appearance of the charming actress, Miss Verah Bertram, who has been the joint star with Mr. Anderson. Miss Bertram died in Oakland, Cal., about a week ago, death coming from the effects of appendicitis. She was in California with Mr. Anderson and the big Essanay Company when attacked by the disease. The film at the Bijou tomorrow is the very last one in which she appeared, and Miss Bertram's work in this particular photoplay is said to have been the best of her career.

A great Pathe is also a star tomorrow in "Cupid's Stolen Arrows." It is a strong, fantastic film. Cupid falls asleep and his arrows are stolen by an evil spirit, who goes out and causes all kinds of queer alliances.

Among the other big films is a great educational photoplay. It is called "Some Inhabitants of Stagnant Water," and it will teach a great lesson and sound a big warning. Don't miss tomorrow's Bijou show.

New Week at the Grand.

A brand new and swell bill in motion pictures, a new and popular song hit by Mr. Chick, music by the complete orchestra and the pictures with realistic effects will make up on Monday one of the best offerings since the Grand Theatre had its Fall opening during the past week.

The song of Mr. Chick will be "Take Me Back to the Garden of Love" and it is sure to make a big hit. In the moveys there will be a big Biograph, "Blind Love", and an Edison, "The Dam Builder." Both are strong in plot and beautiful from a photographic point of view. The Biograph film tells the story of two families that grew up together. There was a boy in one and a girl in the other. They learned to love one another as they grew up and all was well until a lawn party on a fateful night when the girl met the minister's son. What followed is dramatically and beautifully told. The other film is the story of a young engineer and the always interesting problem of engineering construction. There is a pitched battle between a construction force and farmers and the humor and pathos of the situation is well brought out. In addition to these two there is a third film and the new week at the Grand promises to have a gay and festive opening.

Isn't it strange that a lot of people know, more than they can find out?

"SO-LONG MARY" CHORUS,
In Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway, at Academy of Music, Matinee and Night, Wednesday, Sept. 25th.

ROBERT LEE ALLEN.
As "Bob Blake," in The Traveling Salesman Company at the Academy of Music, Friday, September 27th.

A VISIT TO SUNSET PARK

Southern boulevards. All boulevards are 90 feet in width, with a thirty-foot plaza, each a full block long and running down the center of the boulevard. The boulevards are bisected by the north and south streets, which are named after and in the order of our Presidents, Washington street being the first west of Carolina Beach boulevard.

Walking west on Northern boulevard over a slightly rolling surface, one approaches Cape Fear river, and at its edge one stands on an eminence—the site of an old fortress of Revolutionary times—and enjoys a view up and down the river which can only be fittingly expressed by the word "magnificent." At this point several prominent Wilmington citizens have purchased lots and will erect handsome homes.

Along the southern river frontage of the property lies a bay, which one can, with but little imagination, see dotted with the private skiffs and launches of Sunset Parkers.

Turning one's steps eastward again he passes a large force of workmen who are busily constructing a water and sewer system which is the equal in its completeness of a city system. Sixteen-inch mains are being installed, at a depth varying from six to 18 feet, and with manholes and automatic flushing devices and floodgates every 300 feet. One is impressed on every hand with the thought that this is no cheap makeshift development, but of a highly substantial and permanent character. In fact over $30,000, has already been expended on the property, and an additional like amount has been contracted for.

Macadamizing and four-foot cement walks is now being completed along six blocks at the main entrance, and the same character of improvements will be continued along the remaining blocks as fast as it is possible to do so. One of the especially desirable, and most esential features being installed is the drilling of an immense artesian well, with a guranteed flow of forty-five gallons per minute. This pure artesian water will be forced through the large mains now being installed, and property owners will make direct connections onto these mains and secure their entire domestic supply of water by the mere turning of a convenient faucet in their homes. Provisions have already been made for an extension of the gas and electric light service from the city limits to the property. It will thus be seen that even the first resident of Sunset Park will have all the conveniences of pure drinking water, gas for cooking, and electric lights from the very moment he first introduces his family into their new Sunset Park home.

The methods of handling this new subdivision have certainly made Wilmington 'sit up and take notice," and Star considers it a distinct credit to the city that it has a concern in its midst with the faith and resources requisite to project and execute such a creditable undertaking as the Fidelity Trust & Development Company is doing with Sunset Park. It is well worth the while of any citizen to personally visit this property.

Embroidery manufacture is by far the most important of Swiss industries, 78 per cent of the residents of one canton being embroidery workers.

PLENTY OF PROOF

From People You Know—From Wilmington Citizens.

The greatest skeptic can hardly fail to be convinced by evidence like this. It is impossible to produce better proof of merit than the testimony of residents of Wilmington, of people who can be seen at any time. Read the following case of it:

Mrs. W. W. Mince, 712 Vollers st., Wilmington, N. C., says: "I am very thankful to Doan's Kidney Pills for the great benefit I received from their use. For a long time kidney trouble clung to me and I was caused great annoyance by the kidney secretions. My back ached and I did not seem able to get a minute's peace. Some days I was hardly able to move around to attend to my work. At last I got a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills from Bellamy's Drug Store and they restored me to good health." (Statement given February 24, 1908.)

ENDORSES DOAN'S AGAIN.

Mrs. Mince was interviewed on December 27, 1910, and she said: "I can still speak highly of Doan's Kidney Pills and recommend them as being good for kidney trouble. During the past two years I have taken this remedy and it always has a prompt and beneficial effect."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

A UNITED FRONT

Acting Chairman of National Democratic Committee Deplores Strife

New York, Sept. 21.—W. G. McAdoo, acting chairman of the Democratic National Committee, in a recent interview, said:

"We are, of course, disappointed that Maine did not go Democratic this year, but it was too much to expect. It is a Republican State, and the result was determined wholly by local issues and conditions. Maine is neither a barometer nor a thermometer of the National election. This is proven by the fact that in the first Cleveland campaign it went Republican by more than 20,000 majority, and in the third Cleveland campaign by more than 14,000 majority, and yet the Democrats won in November. The election is a Democratic victory in one sense, that the Republican majority in the State has been reduced to the pitiful figure of 3,800. It seems certain that Wilson and Marshall will carry the State in November.

"There is a useful lesson, however, in the Maine result for the Democrats which must not be overlooked. It will awake them from the apathy of overconfidence. Every Democrat in every State must realize that to win a victory in November three things must be done:

"First. All unnecessary fighting within the ranks must cease.

"Second. A united front must be presented and every Democratic vote must be put in the ballot boxes.

"Third. The necessary money must be provided for the National Campaign, and every Democrat in the land should make a contribution, no matter how small.

"The National Committee calls every Democrat to arms and asks him to interest himself immediately and actively in the party cause, and particularly to contribute himself and induce his friends to contribute now to the National Campaign fund. We are undertaking to win this election not only with the votes of the people, but with the money of the people, in order that they may own their government and that it may be absolutely free to serve them. It is inspiring work, and when done it will make a new and luminous page in the history of the Republic. It will set new standards and create new ideals from which there can never be any recession. Political purification and emancipation of the government can be secured in no other way than by a Democratic victory in November."

In a dining table invented by a New Jersey man the extension sections fold beneath the top, swinging up into position as the ends are pulled out.

The United States has held first place among the coal-producing countries of the world since 1890 when it first exceeded Great Britain's figures.

Many Driven From Home

Every year, in many parts of the country, thousands are driven from their homes by coughs and lung diseases. Friends and business are left behind for other climates, but this is costly and not always sure. A better way—the way of multitudes—is to use Dr. King's New Discovery and cure yourself at home. Stay right there, with your friends, and take this safe medicine. Throat and lung troubles find quick relief and health returns. Its help in coughs, colds, grip, croup, whooping cough and sore lungs make it a positive blessing. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by R. R. Bellamy.

WEEK'S NEWS AT LUMBERTON

Cotton Coming In Rapidly—Excursion to Richmond—New Enterprise and Other Notes—Town Commissioners.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Lumberton, N. C., Sept. 21.—From the manner in which cotton is coming to market it appears that good time is being made gathering the crop. While the price seems to be satisfactory the farmers are selling as fast as they can have it ginned, or at least, that is the way it appears from the quantity that is being brought to market, and our merchants are wearing expressions which cause observers to form the opinion that collections are coming in as well as could be expected so early in the season. For several days the weather most of the time has been unfavorable to picking, rain having fallen in this section nearly every day until yesterday.

It is the opinion of at least one individual that the Sheriff's office in a great big court house in a great big county like Robeson should be equipped with a telephone. It makes no difference how important the case may be nor in what section of the county communication may be desired, if the phone is used some one has got to go to his office to tell him that some one at Maxton, Rowland, Red Springs, or somewhere else wants to speak to him. The clerk's office is in the same condition. While the salary system is in vogue we believe that at least the Sheriff's office should have a phone and let the county pay for it. For some time a little ad was run in the local paper telling anyone having business with any of the town officials to call a certain number. That number is over one-fourth of a mile from the homes of the mayor and chief of police. Suppose the chief of police should be urgently needed late at night, say in the railroad section, some one must go at the very least calculation a fourth of a mile. Whatever may be the opinion of others, we believe the Sheriff should have a phone in his office and the chief of police in Lumberton should have one in his residence. The fire chief and one or two commissioners have phones at their residences.

It will be a great surprise if a large crowd of people do not go on the excursion to Richmond Monday. If one-half who say they are going to do so there will be a good crowd from this section. But the fare is only $3.50 for the round trip. Train leaves here at 7:25 A. M.

Monday, October 21st, is the day on which Spark's circus is booked to appear in Lumberton. The contracting agent will be here Monday.

While the weather through September has remained hot as mid-Summer, and it is time for Fall, there has been fewer mosquitoes in Lumberton this year than was ever known. We have heard several traveling men say that the little pests were more numerous at Maxton and Dillon than any towns they had visited.

Mr. J. L. Kean, who has been visiting Lumberton as a traveling salesman for a Baltimore house for 45 years, has spent most of the week in town, taking orders. Mr. Kean is one of the best known and most popular traveling men who visit this section.

The opening attraction at the Lumberton opera house this season will be "45 Minutes from Broadway", which appears on Wednesday night, October 2nd. In this company will be seen Mr. Bert Leigh, who was here last season in "The Man on the Box". Seats will go on sale next Friday morning at McMillan's drug store and our people should not wait until the last minute to secure their tickets. Applications are already coming in from other towns for reservations. No better show will be seen here this season.

Mr. Will Maxwell, who was painfully injured by being kicked by a horse in Deese Bros.' stables Monday, is rapidly recovering and will soon be alright again. It is said that if the horse had had two feet more space in which to kick, Mr. Maxwell would most certainly have been killed.

Mr. O. E. Franklin, of Charlotte, who was expected to begin work with the Pope Drug Company as pharmacist yesterday, decided not to come, and the place will be filled by Mr. Henry Pope, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Pope, of this place. Mr. Pope leaves a good position in Spartanburg, S. C., to accept the position here where he will be at home with his parents, and his many friends are delighted to have him return home to stay.

The Lumberton Steam Laundry turned out its first work yesterday, and while the manager says next week the work will show improvement over that turned out yesterday, it was pronounced simply splendid, especially for the first time before the machinery had all been adjusted. Lumberton seems to have an up-to-date laundry with competent people at the head of it and it is to be hoped our people will sustain it by giving the enterprise their work.

Mr. A. W. Peace, formerly cashier of the Bank of Lumberton, but now with a Fayetteville bank, spent yesterday in town. No man ever lived in Lumberton who made more friends during their stay than did Mr. Peace, and he will always be most cordially greeted when he visits here.

We were severely criticised last Monday about an item in Sunday's paper in which we repeated some things Mayor Caldwell had said in defense of the town administration. Our critic was severe in his denunciation of the way in which town affairs were handled, how money was squandered, etc. The more he talked the redder he got in the face and we decided to move on before there was an explosion. After going a short distance we stopped to think a little, and it occurred to us that the growler was too old to pay poll tax and didn't own a foot of real estate in town. He doesn't subscribe for The Star and the only way he saw what we had to say was to borrow from his neighbor. We expect another spiel Monday, but the lecture may be delivered across the street.

Mr. Jno. T. Biggs, cotton buyer here for Messrs. Sprunt & Son, purchased 59 bales yesterday, the price paid being 11 9-16.

Messrs. R. D. Caldwell & Son have delighted many lady visitors during the week by giving a ware demonstration which was conducted by a lady expert. The demonstration has been a great success. The McAllister Hardware Company gave a demonstration last week which was also a big success.

Mr. J. A. McAllister, clerk of the Session of the Presbyterian church, has given notice that while the pulpit is vacant, caused by the death of Rev. R. E. Steele, a short prayer service will be held each Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock following Sunday School. The service will be brief in order that those desiring to do so may attend services at the other churches.

At a called meeting of the town commissioners held Thursday night, Lloyd Roach was elected to succeed Night Policeman Gus Prevatt, who died last Saturday evening. Mr. Roach has been on the sub list for some time, and while he had three opponents, won out, the vote being a tie. Mayor Caldwell broke the tie by voting for Roach, which gave him the position. An order was passed by the board requiring any employe of the town desiring to leave town or be absent from his post to first get permission from the mayor. Some regard that order as a joke as it is a well known fact that Lumberton has as good servants working for it, from street sweeper up, as any town. And if an employe happens to have a girl out of town, what's the harm in slipping off if he leaves a good sub. These old married men are something some times.

At 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon the Woodmen of the World will unveil a monument at the grave of the late Samuel Boone in the family cemetery four miles from town on the Carthage road.

This entire community deeply sympathizes with Mr. Eli Phillips in the death of his daughter, Miss Blanche, which occurred Wednesday. Miss Phillips was about 17 years of age, and had been a great sufferer for several months wiht throat trouble.

The Republicans tried to have some kind of a county executive committee meeting here Wednesday. It seems that those in attendance agreed to disagree. The county chairman tried to resign, but there was nothing doing. A county convention is to be be held October 1st, to select a county ticket and transact other business. Chairman Culbreth says he will resign rather than be ruled by Federal officeholders, and he'll do it, too, that's the way he is made.

Capt. Amos King, who has been off on his vacation, returned home yesterday morning and will resume his run on the R. & C. Monday morning.

Two or three weeks ago Mr. W. J. Prevatt purchased a fine pair of horses, one of which died one afternoon this week as the result, it is said, of having a chill. Some one reported that about the time the horse died its mate ran away and tore up the buggy. That was tuff. The horse was driven to a trough to drink and when it was through the colored driver touched it up with the whip, whereupon the horse made a leap, clearing himself of buggy and harness and nearly scaring the driver to death.

A young lady who has been a resident of Lumberton for several years, but whose home is in another town, left a few days ago to spend some time with relatives, and it is whispered that when she returns it will be Mrs. instead of Miss. We are glad she has decided to make this her permanent home.

We understand that Mr. Thos. A. Shepard, of Wilmington, has been granted license to operate a pool room in Lumberton. Mr. Shepard spent most of the week here, returning to Wilmington Thursday night. He will return to Lumberton Monday and begin at once arranging to open up in one of the Carlyle stores on Chestnut street, between Third and Fourth.

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Parmele returned from the mountains this week. The many friends of Mr. Parmele are delighted to note the great improvement in his physical condition.

A lady who was a Lumberton visitor between 15 and 20 years ago was here again yesterday and upon inquiry learned that a pet dove she saw on her former visit was still living, went to see the bird to be convinced that it still lived. She saw it alright.

A new route seems to have been established between Wilmington and Lumberton, especially when visitors to the city oversleep themselves. Last Saturday night some Lumberton young men went down to spend Sunday at the beach, and in the city. The hotel people failed to wake them in time for the Seaboard, but did call them in time for the Southbound Coast Line train. They went via Chadbourn and Proctorville, arriving here at 10:30. They left Wilmington in a Pullman and arrived at Lumberton in a shanty.

Fish in large quantities are said to have been caught in the Edmund mill pond this week when the water was drawn off, but very few of them found their way to town. The crowds who were present and engaged in catching the fish were large enough to devour several acres of the finny tribe.

At a meeting of the Industrial and Commercial Club held last night, Mr. R. H. Crighton, the very clever and efficient secertary and treasurer, tendered his resignation and Mr. Woodie Lennon was elected to fill the office. A committee was appointed to take up with the postoffice department the proposition of city free delivery, the town having gone last year over the amount of receipts required to secure the service. A committee was also appointed to solicit new members for the club. An earnest effort will be made to get every citizen who feels an interest in the growth and prosperity of Lumberton to become members. What a great town we might have if all our people would push and pull together.

The Jno. T. Biggs Company is arranging to pull off a big cake baking contest next week, Wednesday being the day and 4 o'clock the hour. Visitors are promised some choice samples of cake while the contestants will come in for something nice in the way of prizes.

Mr. H. H. Anderson, of the Waverly Hotel, left this morning for Fair Bluff, to visit relatives.

Col. "Seaboard Air Line" Johnson, of Abbottsburg, was a business visitor in town this morning.

Some women who are not at all fond of animals will sometimes make monkeys out of their husbands.

CAROLINA APARTMENT HOUSE

New Electrically-Controlled Elevator Installed and Numerous Other Improvements Have Been Made Recently

The Carolina Apartment House, the handsome building at the southwest corner Fifth and Market streets, is undergoing extensive improvements that will add greatly to the comfort and convenience of the large number of people who live there. The Faunt LeRoy Elevator Company, of Baltimore, has just completed and turned to the apartment company one of their latest improved high speed electrically-controlled elevators.

This elevator is particularly designed and used in apartment houses, in fact, there are over eighty in operation at present in the city of Washington alone.

It is equipped with every modern safety device, and is as complete and up-to-date a machine of its size, as the apartment company could find of any make.

This second elevator is installed simply and solely to give better and continued service to the residents of the building. There comes a time when any piece of machinery gets out of order—and the best of elevators are no exception to this rule—therefore, the apartment company have gone to the expense of adding this additional elevator to their already fine one they now have, so that the residents of the Carolina could have continued service.

To install the new elevator shaft and car it became necessary to take down and completely change and rebuild the stairway. This has been done under the direction of that master mechanic, Mr. P. C. Lemoyne, who has made a job of which he may feel proud.

The lobby of the Carolina is now being canvassed and decorated by Mr. H. Pier Giavino, of Washington, D. C., whose work at the Wilmington Savings & Trust Co., and recently for the Masons, proves him an artist in his line.

The side walls and rear floor of the lobby is being floored and wainscoted, with Italian marble, by the Meier Marble Works, of this city, and the entire lobby will, when finished, be exceedingly beautiful and attractive.

Above the lobby from the first floor to the sixth floor the work of decorating continues and each of the hallways will be redecorated, making it a delight to the eye.

The Carolina is a building that each resident of Wilmington may well be proud of. It has been and is the constant aim of the owners to keep it always thoroughly modern and up-to-date, giving the occupants of the building both a comfortable and beautiful home. It is an apartment house that is equal in design and appointment to any in the entire South.

The Carolina has in addition to the work mentioned let contracts for new and complete decorations for the cafe. This, besides being improved in looks, has been greatly improved in the kitchen. New steam table and modern cooking utensils have been added and the cafe of the Carolina, which will be under the personal supervision and direction of Mrs. Eliza Cronly, will be an attractive and delightful place to enjoy a meal, such as Mrs. Cronly serves and has made her a most enviable reputation.

The cafe is generally open to the public, but is of course, particularly patronized by the residents of the Carolina.

Mrs Cronly has a host of friends and is a genius in the art of catering to the palate of the fair sex, as well as the capatious one of the hungry working man.

The very fact of Mrs. Cronly managing the Carolina Cafe is decidedly a great attraction for this delightful home.

The engineer and janitor of the Carolina is Mr. H. G. Garrison, a man skilled in many of the various branches that go for the smooth working and comfort of the occupants of the building. Mr. Garrison has made a study of heating and elevator work and has had many years experience. Before taking charge of the Carolina he was for six years head mechanic at the Orton Hotel.

It is greatly due to the ability of Mr. Garrison that the Carolina has gained the reputation for the splendid service and cleanliness of the building.

New Dealer for Hudson Cars

The cars built by 48 Master Engineers will be sold in this territory by H. L. Fennell.

They have been chosen after a thorough investigation as to their fitness to properly co-operate with the spirit of this Company.

We are just as particular that the dealers who sell HUDSON Motor Cars shall be in entire sympathy with our policy of price maintenance and service as we are that the best engineering brains shall be used in building our cars.

The buyers of an automobile should seriously consider the standing and character of the dealer of whom he buys. Good cars are made unpleasant possessions to their owners if they are bought from dealers who are not fair minded and congenial.

You buy something more than an automobile. You buy service. But, unfortunately, in the automobile trade, many dealers fail to recognize their obligations to their customers.

We are satisfied that in this new representation of HUDSON cars in this territory owners of HUDSON automobiles will be accorded a treatment worthy of their respect and confidence.

The Hudson Motor Car Company has established an enviable prestige for quality, progressiveness and fair play. It is managed by a larger body of experts in all departments than other companies employ.

We recognize the important position which the dealer holds. Though he is a merchant buying and selling our products he is in a measure our representative and he fails and the buyer and we suffer if he is not in sympathy with our policies.

The change we have made here we are confident will obtain for owners of HUDSON cars the same interest we ourselves have in them, as is constantly made evident to every individual we know of who has one of our cars.

HUDSON MOTOR CAR COMPANY.

What (H. L. Fennell) Has to Say

We have had considerable of experience in the automobile trade. With that experience we have had an opportunity to take on the representation of almost any automobile we might have wanted.

When it was known that we were interested in accepting a new line, overtures were made to us by some of the best known companies in the country.

What We Have at Stake

Our business future is staked in whatever car we undertake to sell. There are good automobiles known in this country to most automobile buyers, but because of lack of liberallity on the part of the manufacturer or because these makers are not as progressive in adding to the character of automobiles, or because they do not support their owners in the way of service as well as we think they should, their lines were not acceptable to us.

For years the HUDSON has been the car that has occupied the attention and held the respect of all who are motorwise.

We have talked with the owners of HUDSON cars not only here, but elsewhere. We have interviewed people who did not know our object. Unanimously all who are familiar with the HUDSON have given us the very best kind of an endorsement because they unqualifiedly spoke of it in terms that could not be misinterpreted. They were pleased, not only with the car—for we must in that refer to models that have been discontinued—but in the policy of the company, the promptness of its service and in the high quality of its product.

We Know Motor Car Values

We believe we are expert buyers. In all lines of merchandise, success depnds upon the ability to buy the right kind of goods at the right prices and to interpret the wants of the public.

Failure in any of these details means failure for that merchant. If we were to invest our time and capital and put our business back of a car that failed to make good its promises, we would suffer more than would any individual owner of that car, for upon us would be heaped the ill will and criticism of those who were disappointed. Naturally, we are not seeking that, and that is the reason why we have taken on the HUDSON line.

Our investigations have led us deeply into the subject—into every phase of the Hudson Motor Car Company—its management, the attitude of the various individuals in the company, many of whom we know, and the character of its product. We have investigated the human side of this corporation. We do not merely deal with the Hudson Motor Car Company, but with personalities. We know the ideals of the men who compose that organization and that is why we have such confidence in HUDSON cars that we are staking our prestige in this community and our capital in this unqualified endorsement and recommendation that we are making.

In advocating any automobile the dealer is in the same position as one who recommends for credit another man. If he misjudges his man, discredit is brought upon him as sponsor. We have no hesitancy in standing sponsor for the Hudson Motor Car Company and any car which it offers. We go farther and endorse it with all that we are worth in reputation and what we hope to stand for in this community and with the money we have invested in the business.

To Owners of HUDSON Cars in This Territory

We have established a service for HUDSON cars that must be of value to all HUDSON owners.

Capable men are in charge. They are able to diagnose troubles and to remedy them without delay. This saves expense It adds to service and we want you to feel that here you will find the same keen interest and sympathy with your problems on our part that you would feel were you in the market today and we were trying to sell you an automobile.

The fact that you have bought before we began selling HUDSON cars has no bearing upon our attitude toward you. You are a member of the Big Family and we are its representatives. We are able to give you prompt attention and we want to do it. Come to see us.

MR. WILLIAMSON'S STATEMENT.

His Action Was in Objection to Efforts to Change Progressive Platform.

To the Editor:—There appeared in your paper this morning an article headed "Williamson and the Liquor Plank Estrangement" which is so absolutely misleading and false that I must ask that you give me room in your columns to state the facts as they occurred.

Now I take it that your correspondent was given the outlines upon which to write this article by some one else, and if this is the case I in no way censure him, as any good newspaper man is ever willing to get a good news item and especially so if it is at all sensational, but the man that gave him these false and misleading statements is not worthy of the name "gentleman."

The truth in regard to this long, voluminous, false article is that a certain wing of the Republican party was much disturbed that we Progressives of North Carolina did not hold our Progressive convention the day after the Charlotte Republican convention, in order that they could if they saw proper come out of the Charlotte Republican convention and join hands with the Progressives.

The Progressive party of North Carolina is just as much a party as is the Democratic or the Republican party, and I, myself, and my friends who followed me refused to comply with request to hold our convention after the Charlotte Republican convention, but we were unanimous in the opinion that we should hold our Progressive convention in advance of the Charlotte Republican convention, As soon as our course was known a certain element among the Republicans set to work to make the attendance at the Progressive convention just as small as possible, but in spite of this influence, we had a very good crowd of really representative citizens.

Now at our Progressive convention we adopted a Progressive platform which met with the unanimous approval of this mass Progressive convention, and we also at this convention named an executive committee and the members of this committee were asked to meet in Greensboro, N. C., on Tuesday, September 10th, and I went to Greensboro to attend this meeting and while there I was informed that there was a committee from the crowd that had been thrown out of the Charlotte Republican convention who wished to confer with the Progressives and it was agreed by the majority of the Progressive executive committee to confer with the committee from the Charlotte Republican convention.

At this conference there was a committee of five from the Progressive party and a committee of five from the Charlotte Richmond Pearson-Marion Butler Republican party to look into the matter of a party platform, and while this last named political party stated that they were great believers in Mr. Roosevelt, still they have to be regular on account of their devotion to the "Grand Old Party" and while they state they are very loyal to Mr. Roosevelt they state that they believe in the Taft-Chicago platform and will stand upon this National Taft platform.

Now then our Progressive State platform had been as above stated, unanimously adopted by the Progressive party's mass convention, and when the Marion Butler-Richmond Pearson Republican party's committee of five came back in company with the Progressive party's committee of five, the first named crowd had voluminous changes that they wished made in the Progressive State platform—possibly they wanted our Progressive State platform to be a little more like the Taft National platform, so they would feel a little more at home.

Now the Progressive party of North Carolina and in this Nation is founded upon high principles, and must be run upon a high plane, and when these parties wanted to change the Progressive platform and by so doing to Pearsonize and Pearsonize the Progressive party I took the stand that a platform that had been adopted by a convention could not be changed without the consent of the convention, and I carried my point by a majority vote, and there was no change made in the Progressive platform.

I am just a hard working business man of the State, and not so wealthy as some, and not as wealthy as I would like to be, but I claim to be a man of honor and principle, and I was only drawn into this political battle on account of my real love and devotion to that greatest of all American citizens—Theodore Roosevelt, and I shall stand for this great man true as steel and fearlessly until he is safely lodged in the White House in November next. I merely mention this in order that all my friends may see that my defection will result in nothing more than the above.

When there was an attempt to Butlerize and Pearsonize the Progressive platform I did leave the committee room in anything but a pleasant frame of mind, but I could have been easily found as I was where I had been all day, in and about the McAdoo Hotel. I left the committee meeting before it adjourned and remained in Greensboro fully an hour or more after it adjourned, and could have been easily found by any one who wanted to see me. About an hour after the committee meeting adjourned I was conspicuous about the corridor of the hotel until my automobile came to carry me home, and I made the run from Greensboro to Burlington in my machine and not upon the train.

I returned also to Greensboro the next morning, and was there to see some parties upon political plans and arrangements, and I repeat that any one could have seen me the night of the committee meeting or the next morning in Greensboro, and I took it that every one present knew just where I lived, but if not, will state that I live in the town of Burlington, and that I have the moral courage to stand up for and not to run away from what I know to be the honest and clean thing.

Yours very truly,
JAMES N. WILLIAMSON, Jr.

FINDS WEALTH A BURDEN.

Great Fortune Has Brought Many Cares to Mrs. Russell Sage.

(From the New York Press.)

One of the most pathetic figures in the world today is Mrs. Russell Sage, upon whom the fortune left her by her husband imposes a fearful burden. There is scarcely a day that she does not weep, one of her intimate friends tells us. She sits and cries at the intolerable burden of having $65,000,000 on her shoulders, at the task of distributing that huge fortune in the way that will do the most good. She is 80 years old and has a New England conscience. She wants to do just the right thing with it all, and it requires an amount of thought and study and imposes a feeling of responsibility that is hard on an old woman who only wants a quiet corner to spend her few remaining years in.

Mrs. Sage has aged very much since her husband's death. She has grown thin, pale, bent and wrinkled. Aside from the natural grief over Mr. Sage's death, Mrs. Sage was plunged almost instantly into a storm of appeals which amounted to a persecution. Her mail for some years before Mr. Sage's death had amounted to between 40 and 50 letters a day. It leaped instantly to 900 a day, and the entire surplus was appeals for money. Within two months after Mr. Sage's death 7,000 letters were carried away from her house unopened. Two secretaries worked night and day almost to handle Mrs. Sage's private mail. If she attempted to read 10 per cent. of it personally she would be able to do nothing else.

At first she tried conscientiously to look it over herself. She was astonished and disgusted at some of it. Before Mr. Sage's body was cold in its coffin she received a letter from a New York man whom she never had seen asking her to send him a check for $1,000 by return mail, and he was kind enough to enclose a stamped envelope for reply. She never asked for advice as to the disposal of this fortune, yet within the first two months of her widowhood she received letters from more than 1,000 different men, instructing her how to give away her money so as to do the most good.

The letters that really affected Mrs. Sage at this time were pathetic appeals for help from individuals. Many of these were to all appearances genuine, the appeals of poor and ignorant persons suffering in want and hardship, and pathetically confident that the kind-hearted woman who had more money than she knew what to do with would give them the little that would make them happy. Some of these letters distressed Mrs. Sage greatly; but they came not only from every State in the Union, but from foreign countries. Had she responded to them she would have dissipated her entire fortune in small checks to individuals all over the world. So finally Mrs. Sage gave up her mail. Now a letter which is manifestly from a personal friend is given her, but nothing else reaches her eye.

It is not only impossible to reach Mrs. Sage by letter—it has become one of the impossible things to see her. Mrs. Sage formerly was one of the most approachable of women. Not a trace of snobbery or purse pride is to be found in her make-up. A plaint, old-fashioned village woman she started her career, and that she remains to this day. She never cared anything about fine clothes or society, and her friends were chosen by preference from among the people who are doing the work of the world. With professional women she was particularly friendly. That period of her own life, 1947, when she was graduated, and 1869, when she married Mr. Sage, was spent in teaching school whenever her health would permit, and she never felt above any one who earned his or her living. Any one who had ever been introduced to Mrs. Sage could see her as easily at her own home as if she had been the wife of a clerk instead of a multi-millionaire.

Some one wrote a book once on "Prisoners of Poverty." Mrs. Sage is a Prisoner of Wealth. Behind this human rampart she sits, afraid that some one may reach to torment her.

A Good Shopper—"She is a rare hand for finding bargains." "So?" "Yes; just now I met her with a 99 cent turkey which she ran across in a department store."

Let the first lesson be: How to keep well.

Bell Telephone Bulletins

9—HOW TROUBLES ARE REPAIRED

There is no red tape around our method of repairing telephone troubles and correcting faults in the service. When a report of trouble is made to us it goes immediately to the proper department and the investigation begins at once. The equipment, that is the subscribers' line from the switchboard to the telephone instrument, is thoroughly tested, and if necessary, is inspected personally by a competent man. We have delicate instruments on the test-board that show the nature of a trouble and indicate its location.

Oftentimes the trouble is in a cable or in a telephone instrument and is of an involved nature. In such cases it is necessary to send a man out on the trouble. This requires more or less time and we realize that there is likely to be an unfortunate appearance of delay on our part. We hope our subscribers will understand that we are not neglecting their trouble just because they do not see a man actually at work on their telephone. Frequently troubles occur on telephones and are detected by us and corrected by us without the subscriber knowing his line has been out of order.

The only thing in which we deal is telephone service. We cannot give good service over lines that are in trouble. It is to our vital interest to keep all lines clear and we are constantly on the job. We employ men who are especially trained for this work. A complete record is kept of every trouble and complaint, the hour it is reported and the hour it is corrected. We are in close touch with the situation at all hours. We want our subscribers to know this and to realize that their interests are our interests.

FORAGE CROP

Hardy Alfalfa Imported by the Department of Agriculture

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—Considerable interest has been aroused through the importation by the U. S. Department of Agriculture of some new, hardy varieties of alfalfa. Little, however, is generally known concerning the characteristics of these new alfalfas or the real purposes of their introduction.

In the search for hardy forms of common alfalfa (Medicago sativa) adapted to severe conditions of drought and cold, the potential value of closely allied species became apparent. Yellow-flowered species (Medicago falcata) found widely distributed throughout Eurasia, forms of which thrive on the cold, dry steppes of Russia and similar regions, seemed to be the most promising. For this reason persistent efforts were made to import many valuable forms of this species.

Medicago falcata, erroneously called "Siberian alfalfa," and for which there is no satisfactory common name, is characterized in general by its drooping habit, narrow leaves, and fine stems; but it is so variable that some plants may be readily mistaken for common alfalfa when not in flower. Very few of the forms possess true tap roots like the common alfalfa, but they have a branching root system by which new plants are produced. The flowers are yellow and the seed pods falcate or sickle shaped, hence its botanical name.

The Department of Agricultural has met with many difficulties in procuring seed in quantity, as it is not handled commercially and in no place is it produced in abundance. In spite of the scarcity of seed very thorough tests have been conducted both under cultivation and on unbroken sod at the Department's testing stations and in co-operative experiments at State stations. The results of these tests of the available forms of Medicago falcata indicate rather definitely that their chief value is for crossing with common alfalfa to produce hardy and drought resistant hybrid strains. At present the new alfalfas do not appear to be sufficiently productive to make them generally profitable under cultivation. Many of the forms are unquestionably very hardy and drought resistant and have already shown their value as stock for crossing with varieties commonly known.

One of the hardiest, if not the hardiest of our commercial strains, the Grimm alfalfa, probably originated through natural hybridization of Medicago falcata and common alfalfa. Grimm alfalfa is coming into very wide use in the Northwestern States. The new alfalfas have not yet been tested on the open range as fully as under cultivation. Although the results to date indicate their inability to maintain themselves except under very favorable conditions, the tests are nevertheless being continued with the hope of ultimate success in improving the range.

The experts of the Department do not believe that this yellow-flowered alfalfa in its unselected State is a crop for the farmer to test, even though seed were available. Three main considerations show that it is not likely to prove valuable under cultivation: (1) Most of its forms are not sufficiently erect to be easily harvested for hay. (2) It does not recover quickly after cutting and can not be expected to give more than one cutting during the season. (3) Its seed habits are usually poor, the seed being scantly produced and shattering badly at maturity.

The Department of Agriculture is pushing the work of selection by hybridization of the best forms of this species as rapidly as possible, in the hope that valuable drought-resistant and cold-resistant strains may ultimately be established in general use.

DO YOU OBSERVE CLOSELY?

Compare Your Power of Observation With These Tests.

(From American Magazine.)

How many people whom you meet in everyday life observe as much as they ought?

If you think it easy, try this: Ask some member of your family about some object which they are accustomed to see. For instance, a picture. As, which way the head faces, right or left. Seven out of ten will be unable to tell correctly.

The writer filled the office of lecturer in the Grange for some time, and for an experiment one evening asked a number of questions about the hall in which the meetings are held.

On "Observation Night", as it was called, some 60 members were in attendance. For a starter they were asked which way the Indian head on the common cent faced, right or left. Only two could tell.

"Two doors leading to a balcony were next brought to mind. A knob on one door opened both. They were asked on which door this knob was located. Two gave the correct answer, while 35 gave the wrong door.

The number of pictures on the walls of the dining hall was next questioned. No one, not even the janitor, could tell. They all gave nearly twice the correct number, which was 12.

"Is there a telephone pole squarely in front of the hall?" was next asked. A brother said there was. Another brother said he thought it was not squarely in front, but a little to the left. Both brothers were positive they were right and caused no little merriment for the rest. More merriment was caused by the report of a committee that the nearest pole was to the right of the hall.

All these objects had been seen by those present probably hundreds of times, but they hadn't noticed them enough to remember about them.

Now, dear reader, when you meet a friend on the street, just ask him which way the head on a five-cent piece faces, left or right. Ten to one he won't know.

Ask all your friends "observation questions," little things that they should notice. Before you are aware of the fact you will be observing many things you never noticed before, and you will enjoy life more for having noticed them.

CO-OPERATIVE CREDITS.

What Has Been Done for the Farmer in Belgium.

Washington, Sept. 21.—Minister Larz Anderson has completed the investigation of the co-operative credit systems of Belgium which he undertook in connection with President Taft's attempt to establish co-operative credit in this country for the benefit of the American farmer.

The first attempt made in Belgium to relieve the farmers from the burden of high interest rates was essentially a government undertaking. It is interesting to note, however, that the co-operative idea as developed in Germany was later adopted in Belgium and has largely supplanted the plan adopted by the Belgium government, at least so far as the smaller landowners are concerned.

By law, in 1884, the General Savings Bank was authorized to make loans to farmers and to societies of farmers. As a guaranty for these loans small corporate bodies were formed, known as "Comptoirs agricoles", which guaranteed the loans to the General Savings Bank and for this service received a small commission. As the plan worked out, these guarantors found it both more profitable and safer to act as sureties for the larger landowners. The smaller farmers could not offer as good security and the commission paid to the "comptoirs agricoles" on such a loan as was required by a small farmer did not make the game worth the candle. Consequently, in the first 25 years after this form of loan had been authorized by law, only about 15 "comptoires agricoles were formed in all Belgium. Of the 3,000 and odd loans guaranteed by these "comptoirs agricoles" at the end of 1909, only a fraction on a hundred were for amounts less than $250, which shows that the small farmers received little real benefit from this scheme.

Realizing this, the Abbe Mellaerts set about to adapt the Raiffeisen system to Belgium conditions. He established his first rural co-operative bank in 1892. By 1910 643 of these banks had been established. This shows the immense growth of the co-operative credit idea in Belgium. Except that by law these co-operative banks or societies in Belgium are required to raise a foundation capital to start with and are not allowed to hold their reserve fund as indivisible, there is little difference between the Belgian societies and the Raiffeisen banks of Germany. The societies in Belgium, as in Germany, are served by central co-operative banks. In Belgium these central banks supervise the management and audit the books of the rural co-operative banks. They also guarantee loans made to the rural banks by the General Savings Bank. In 1894 a law was passed setting aside 1,000,000 francs of the funds of the General Savings Bank which was to be loaned to the rural banks at the set rate of 3 1-4 per cent. In order to enjoy the benefit of this law a rural bank has to become a member in a central co-operative bank and has to have the central bank's guaranty for the loan. The central bank receives a commission of one-twelfth of 1 per cent. of the interest charged as payment for this surety. These central co-operative banks are formed among the rural banks, each rural bank subscribing for a share of stock valued at $25 and assuming liability for the central bank's indebtedness to the sum of $250. The rural bank receives a set dividend of 3 per cent. on its stock in the central bank.

Complete statistics of the business done by the co-operative societies of Belgium are not obtainable, but the total loans made in a year amount to about a million dollars and they carry deposits totalling probably two millions, which, in a country the size of Belgium, shows a healthy growth for the co-operative idea in that country.

The future hope for hygiene lies in the schooling of today. The prevention of unnecessary sickness is chiefly a question of education.

A "CURE"? FOR BALDNESS

The above expression is one which is used frequently in connection with hair preparations. Just exactly what is meant by it in each instance is a question. Baldness is not a disease and hence, does not permit of a cure. It is a result invariably to be traced to the dandruff germ and if the condition has become chronic, that is, if there is complete atrophy of the hair follicles, a "cure" is absolutely impossible.

Approaching baldness, seen in falling hair, may always be checked and if the hair follicles are not atrophied the hair may be induced again to grow.

This is accomplished by regular applications of Newbro's Herpicide which cleanses the scalp and kills the dandruff germ. The destruction of the germ does away with the accumulations of scarf skin and thus eliminates the most common enemy to beautiful hair.

Soft, glossy, fluffy hair cannot grow on a scalp infested with dandruff any more than a delicate plant can grow on an ash heap. The scalp must be kept clean and free from dandruff. The best remedy for doing this is Newbro's Herpicide which receives the highest endorsements from professional men, the stage and the best people everywhere.

Herpicide is sold and guaranteed in one dollar size bottles by all druggists. Applications obtained at all first-class barber shops and hair dressing parlors.

That is the nature of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—the one remedy for women which contains no alcohol and no habit-forming drugs. Made from native medicinal forest roots. Dr. Pierce tells its every ingredient on the bottle-wrapper. Prominent physicians and some of the best medical authorities endorse these ingredients as being the very best known remedies for ailments and weaknesses peculiar to women.

MRS. COFFEY.

This is what Mrs. Genetti E. Coffey, of Longstreet, Ky., says: "I feel it my duty to write and tell you what your medicines have done for me. I was a great sufferer for six years from a trouble peculiar to women, but I am thankful to say, after taking four bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' I am not bothered with that dreadful disease any more. I feel like a new woman. When I first wrote you for advice I only weighed 115 pounds—now I weigh 135.

"I thank you very much for your kindness. You have been as a father to me in advising me what to do, so may God bless you in every effort you put forth for good.

"I hope this testimonial will be the means of some poor suffering woman seeking health."

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, newly revised up-to-date edition, answers hosts of delicate questions about which every woman, single or married ought to know.

THREAT OF CURFEW IN GOTHAM

Must Show Cause Why They Should Not Go Home at Midnight—Blind Beggar Slavery.—Whiskers Fashionable.

Special Star Correspondence.)

New York, Sept. 21.—New York's Great White Way is up in arms over the most surprising bit of news that it has heard in years which is so revolutionary in its character as actually to threaten the early morning activity for which the thoroughfare is famed.

The remarkable bit of news is to the effect that Broadway is to have a curfew rule, and although curfew will not ring, figuratively, until midnight, instead of at the conventional hour of 9 o'clock, its enforcement is likely to change the early morning hours from the gayest in Broadway's whole day to ones of quiet and desolation. At 12 o'clock according to the new rule no one will be tolerated along the Great White Way who has not a good excuse for being there, and persons arrested for violating this rule will have to face either a fine or a workhouse sentence. Moreover, it is said that the excuse will have to be a good one and genuine as well. No loitering or strolling aimlessly about will be tolerated, and it is still an open question whether the desire to satisfy one's hunger or thirst will be accepted as a valid excuse. There are also many places along Broadway where turkey trotting is indulged in after midnight [illegible] much interest is evinced as to whether a desire to indulge in this dance will be regarded as a sufficient protection against arrest. As the gayest hours of the day only begii at midnight along the great White Way, and continue practically until sunrise, the working of the new curfew rule may result in an upheaval which may make the gayety of this street only a memory. Although arrests have already been made under the new rule, prominent Broadwayites are hopeful that the duratici of its enforcement will be short, as has been the case in other reform movements. Meanwhile the owners of cabaret shows, restaurants, cafes and big electric signs, all of which go to make up the night life of Broadway, are wondering what their fate will be if the new curfew rule is rigidly enforced.

While New York has for years become excited over various kinds of slavery notably in the case of the white slave trade, it has remained for the discovery of what is believed to be a "blind beggar slavery" to top the list of strange methods of making money through the labor of others. The belief that such a slavery exists, under which the pleadings of unfortunate beggars are used to swell the pocketbooks of persons who use them as a source of income, has been brought about by the arrest of a man who it is alleged has been profiting by the contributions of the public to a blind beggar, now said to be under his control. According to the story this man kept the blind beggar at his home, selecting each morning the place at which he was to beg, taking his savings at night, and then detaining him upon scanty rations until the next day. The earnings of the beggar are said to have amounted to between $3 and $5 daily, and the police claim that the result of the blid man's begging has netted the man in question more than $1,000. In support of their claim they point out that this man has three times secured the release of the beggar from institutions to which he has been rommitted for mendidandy. The case whei it comes to trial is likely to arouse considerable interest slice in view of the many channels of graft which have recently been exposed the suggestion has been advanced that organized begging directed by a number of men who get the money may yet be added to the already long list of parasitic methods of gaining an increased income.

After a generation during which practically all male New Yorkers under 50, who desired to keep up with the proper fashions have gone clean shaven, it now looks as if whiskers are again to have an inning. Apparently not satisfied with setting the styles in feminine dress, the word has now come from Europe that facial hirsute decorations will be the correct thing this Winter for the man who desires to be eminently proper. The most fashionable kinds, it is said, will be those which adorn the side of the face only, but many are mentioned as being at least not in bad taste. Among these are Dundrearys, Galways, Roscommons and Paisleys, to mention a few of the long list. At present barbers report a flood of inquiries concerning the character of these various styles since New York has gone bearless for so long that the names mean little or nothing to the younger generation. Just how popular the new fashion will be remains to be seen, and can hardly be determined until the whiskers have had time to attain a healthy growth. There is more than a suspicion, however, that the statements put forward by various physicians that it is not sanitary. Likewise it is likely to meet the unqualified disapproval of all the barbers.

Aerial death is rapidly becoming so common in New York that it now seems likely that some sort of legal steps may shortly be taken to eliminate it, so far as that is possible. This, however, has nothing to do with aeroplanes and their use, but instead with the shower of death-dealing missiles varying in size from a brick to a huge slab of granite or a steel girder which of late has been dropping from the great skyscrapers in the process of construction upon the unsuspecting pedestrians below. The latest and most spectacular of a long list of such accidents has finally aroused public feeling sufficiently to indicate that something is likely to be done. In this accident, which occurred as thousands were hurrying home from offices, in the congested downtown district, a workman on the 36th floor of the new municipal building was crushed to death by a huge granite block partially released by the breaking of a derrick arm. Had the mass fallen to the pavement it might have caused a dozen deaths. It has frequently been suggested that the sidewalks adjacent to buildings in the course of erection be rofed over. This would, of course, provide protection against smaller missiles, but would be valueless, no matter how strongly constructed, against a ton of granite or steel falling several hundred feet. Abolishing the law of gravity seems to be about the only sure protection, but engineers are nevertheless working on different plans which they hope may make pedestrians reasonably safe in the vicinity of a skyscraper in the course of erection.

The biggest fish story of the season up to date has just emanated from the Zoo, and as might be supposed from this distinction, it is a remarkable one to say the least. The Zoo is now in possession of fish which can climb, a tank containing a dozen climbing perch having just been received there, the gift of an Englishman who on his last visit to this city promised to send back something odd which he might run across during his travels. The result is the climbing perch in question which comes from India and is about 10 inches in length. They have been placed in a tank around the edges of which is a wooden platform. The Zoo's fishkeeper explained that they get their name from the fact that when they desire to take a nap they climb up the side of the tank to the platform on which to enjoy their sleep. Fortunately, the fish are on public view so that incredulous persons can inspect them first hand instead of having to rely on hearsay evidence as is the case in most fish stories. Incidentally the arrival of the climbing perch seems likely to throw some light on the mooted question as to whether fish sleep.

—LONGACRE.

Where is It Healthy?

The pressing need for a State-wide vital statistics law is shown by the many letters received by the State Board of Health inquiring about the health conditions of various sections of the State. Here is a sample just received: "I am thinking of moving with my family to .....county, N. C., and wish to know if in so doing there will be much danger from malaria or typhoid. If you can advise me about the health conditions there you will be doing me a great favor."

The Department of Agriculture has maps showing where certain crops grow best, and others which show where certain soils abound, or where conditions are favorable for certain industries. We have maps showing climatic conditions of the State, such as the rainfall, the average temperature, etc. In fact, we have definite information on almost anything in this State, but who ever saw a map showing health conditions in the State? Who knows in what section of the State people live the longest or die the soonest? Why should we not know in which section of the State there is the least typhoid or consumption or pellagra? Definite information showing up the pest holes of disease would make these sections wake up and clean up in order to keep their health standard up. This same thing works elsewhere, why should it not work here? Give us a State-wide vital statistics law so we may know where and what kind of health work to do. It is largely guess work now.

A Timely Reminder—"We are still mining ore, growing cotton and manufacturing steel," said the American host. "Why do you tell me that?" inquired the foreign visitor. "I just want to remind you that the country is producing something besides politics."

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By Dr. David H. Reeder, Chicago, Illinois.

Auto-Intoxication—The significance of this condition has but recently been fully realized. Not that it is a new condition, for it is not, but the results of it have until recently been attributed to many other causes.

Failure to reason from effect back to the cause has held in check the progress of the science of medicine for at least a hundred years. Medical men for the last half century have been too busy looking for "bugs" and trying to discover antitoxins, serums and specifics, to stop and study thoroughly and from a logical standpoint, the human body and the real cause of the diseases affected by it.

If one has a thorough knowledge of the human body and the laws governing its existence, the matter of finding the causes of its disease is not so very difficult. The removal of the causes is, however, a different matter. There are many things which the physician must meet and if possible overcome. Some of these are: the mental attitude of the patient, his confidence in, and his co-operation with the physician determines to a large degree the outcome of his case. Heredity: An inherited diathesis or tendency, will greatly influence any treatment; idiosyncrasy (special characteristics or temperament); this condition is not often met with, but when it is, the case must be studied and the treatment outlined with extreme care.

Auto-intoxication is according to the medical dictionary: "Poisoning by faulty metabolic products elaborated within the body; Auto-infection." In other words, it is self-poisoning induced by faulty assimilation and elimination.

Food taken into the stomach must be acted upon by certain juices secreted by glands of the stomach, before it is passed into the intestines for further digestion. If it is passed into the intestines without having been acted upon thoroughly by the juices of the stomach, the bowels will be unable to thoroughly digest it. Consequently the undigested portion will rapidly decay. This decaying mass gives off poisonous gases and other poisonous products, which may cause diarrhoea at first, but will probably cause constipation later.

A certain amount of these poisonous products are reabsorbed into the system and thrown into the blood stream. The poorer the digestion and the poorer the elimination the greater and more active the symptoms. The symptoms, by the way, are legion. They include nearly everything in the catalogue of human ailments. They will be discussed further on in another article. To illustrate: A lady 38 years, had for a number of years been suffering with rheumatism, poor eye-sight, and a general feeling of lassitude. She had been under the usual treatment for a long time, without benefit. It was a plain case of auto-intoxication. Her diet was corrected and proper treatment given. Today, one year later, she enjoys excellent health in every respect.

Hurry and carelessness, in respect to food and mustication is ever increasing the demand for the services of the physician, as well as that of the patent "dope" venders.

The reader will naturally ask: How am I to know that I have auto-intoxication? What are the symptoms?

To discuss these symptoms at length would perhaps not come within the province of this article, but a few of the symptoms, which in nearly every instance, indicate auto-intoxication will be discussed.

Headache—This symptom, perhaps more than any other indicates auto-intoxication. The how and the why of this cannot be discussed, but the truth of the statement cannot be questioned.

Loss of Energy and Ambition—This in nearly every instance means auto-intoxication. The poison has permeated the entire system; the intellect is not so acute; all the functions of the body are impaired, and they do not readily respond to the weakened nerve impulses. The person thus affected expresses himself as feeling "All in."

Billiousness—This condition indicates an acute attack of auto-intoxication and shows a marked effort on the part of nature to rid the system of poison.

Nervous Debility—Or perhaps better, neurasthenia, indicates that the nervous system is being poisoned as well as starved through the lack of proper food, due to poor assimilation and elimination.

Rheumatism—No, our old friend, rheumatism is not a disease of itself, but merely a symptom of a poisoned, clogged up and abused system; auto-intoxication describes it.

Constipation—This condition may be either the cause or the result of auto-intoxication. More frequently, however, it is the cause.

Since the mission of the Home Health Club is to teach people how to avoid disease, as well as how to get rid of it, that aspect of the subject will be discussed in a following article.

All readers of this publication are at liberty at any time to write for information pertaining to the subject of health. Address all communications to the Home Health Club, 5039 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago, Ill., U. S. A., with name and address in full and at least four cents in postage.

WHY BIRTH RATE FALLS

There's a Natural Reason for Miscalled Race Suicide

(From Saturday Evening Post)

Some German statistics suggest that marriages, births and deaths tend to decrease in pretty much the same proportion. In 1875 the birth rate for the empire was 32 and a fraction to a thousand of the population. In the decade 1892-1902 it had fallen to 37 and a fraction. It is now below 32. In 1892-1902 there were 8.2 marriages to a thousand inhabitants and 4 1-2 births to a marriage. There are now less than 8 marriages to a thousand and only 4 births to a marriage.

At the same time the death rate has steadily fallen. The same underlying cause produces the double result of a falling birth rate and a falling death rate. That cause, of course, is education and improvement in all the material conditions of living. About in proportion as men hope to give their children something more than simple existence population is kept down. The more enlightened a population becomes the more effectually it will combat disease and the more solicitous it will become for the training and opportunities of its offspring—the less willing to have children beyond its probable means of educating and endeavoring them with a fair start in life.

Probably also Mother Nature would approve a falling birth rate that resulted only from laziness and selfishness. If a population reached that stage of decay where it preferred ease to parenthood, the fewer children it had the better. In this matter of miscalled race suicide humanity is much wiser than the medieval minded sociologists who insist upon more numbers.

Deep down in the heart of every normal man and woman is the ambition to some day own a home.

This may be half-formed—a vague discontent and unrest concerning conditions which every renter so well knows—or, it may have reached the state of active DETERMINATION AND RESOLVE to make any and all sacrifices necessary to escape the renter's life and to LIVE IN AND

SUNSET PARK

Own a Real Home of Your Own

SUNSET PARK

The desire and the ambition ARE THERE, more or less definitely formed in the heart of every man and woman, waiting only for the needed stimulus to DEVELOP TO THE POINT OF ACTION.

It is natural to live in one's own home.

It is unnatural to live in a rented house or apartment.

The family that lives in its own house, no matter how humble it may be, feels the sense of independence that does not come to the family in a rented house.

Every renter feels, even if he does not say it, that every month's rent that he turns over to his landlord is money practically thrown away. That is, he knows that it is too much to pay for the merely temporary comforts it brings—and they're often pretty doubtful comforts, too.

When one stops to think of the amount of money that is paid out in rents during twenty or twenty-five years, one is amazed and dumbfounded.

IT IS ENOUGH TO BUY A FINE HOME, FREE FROM ALL INCUMBRANCES.

Yet what has the renter to show for his money expended, except a bundle of rent receipts?

The same money spent a little more judiciously, in payments for a lot and then a house, would go to secure a desirable home and make a splendid investment and saving.

There are various ways for the renter to go about it to acquire a home.

He may undertake to purchase a house that has already been lived in, an old house, perhaps; at any rate a second-hand house; or he may go out to the suburbs, where real estate owners and contractors often put up houses on pure speculation.

Both of these methods are at fault to the extent that such a house has not been made to meet the special requirements of those who are to live in it.

The requirements of no two families are exactly alike, and when a matter so vitally important as the acquiring of a home is at stake, a dwelling that has to be occupied throughout life, it seems that the house OUGHT to be built ESPECIALLY TO MEET THE NEEDS OF THE OWNER.

So there is the third way of acquiring a home, and it is undoubtedly THE BEST WAY.

It is NOT to buy a ready-made house, either new or second-hand, but to HAVE A HOUSE BUILT IN JUST THE RIGHT LOCATION AND OF JUST THE RIGHT SIZE AND CHARACTER AS YOU YOURSELF DESIRE.

This is an easy thing for even a man of average means or modest income to do.

The first consideration is naturally the location of the lot itself.

Your start towards a home will have been judiciously begun when you DECIDE TO PURCHASE A LOT.

SAVOYARD TELLS OF THE TARIFF

Noted Political Writer Tells Why Taft and Roosevelt Cannot be Trusted for a Fair Revision—His Observations.

(By Savoyard.)

New York, Sept. 21.—Governor Marshall, the Democratic candidate for Vice President, is convinced it is bad husbandry, and perhaps bad morals, for the government to engage in the favoritism of equalizing the cost of production at home and abroad for the manufacturers before it equalizes the difference in the purchase price to the consumer at home and abroad. That is antiquated doctrine, preached by Thomas Jefferson and practiced by Andrew Jackson, that William H. Taft repudiates and Theodore Roosevelt rejects. It means that the government shall not lay taxes on one citizen for the advantage of another citizen. It means that if one individual is entitled to protection, all individuals have equal rights to enjoy it.

But Mr. Taft and Mr. Roosevelt both hold that it is sound economy to tax the consumers of the United States in order that certain interests may engage in enterprises that would be unprofitable if the government did not enforce the common people to "protect" them. There is the real paramount issue of this campaign—shall Peter, a hardworking farmer, pay higher prices for what he is bound to have in order to enrich Paul, a manufacturer, who makes clothing and other fabrics of wool and cotton, and all farm machinery, such as is turned out by the Harvester Trust—reapers, mowers, threshers, plows, rakes, hoes and what not? It is the simplest proposition in the world—shall taxation be for public purpose or for private gain?

* * *

Millions of our fellow-citizens are engaged in walks that deprive them of any benefit arising from a protective tariff. Take the railroad operative. It is impossible to "protect" him in a tariff law. He is the victim of that policy; he pays the protection in the higher cost of living. That is the main cause of clashes between employer and employe, of strikes and violence such as were seen at Lawrence, Mass., some time ago. Wages are high, but the advantage of them is swallowed up in the higher cost of living.

It is impossible to "protect" by a tariff a clerk in an office building, or a store. A traveling salesman on the road must contribute of his salary a part to protect the manufacturer. The man who cleans the street must give a part of his miserable wage to the trusts that monopolize the markets for the things he has to buy. The same is true of the teamster. The clergyman, the lawyer, the doctor, the actor, the hotel proprietor and his help, the printer in a newspaper office, the girl at the telephone, the liveryman and all his help—none of them can be protected by any tariff possible to conceive. They help pay the protection that Taft and Roosevelt are cordially agreed shall be imposed on them for the advantage of men who supply lumber for their houses, wares for their furnishing, clothing and the hundreds of other articles they are bound to have.

* * *

Let us glance at some of the rates of taxation imposed on these people for the protection of the Wool Trust. On blankets the rate is 67 per cent. to 168 per cent.; on carpets from 55 per cent. to 71 per cent.; on dress goods from 94 per cent. to 157 per cent.; on flannels from 70 per cent. to 121 per cent.; on knit goods from 95 to 153 per cent.; on hats, 78 per cent.; on shawls, 84 per cent.; on ready-made clothing, 74 per cent.

The cotton schedule is too elaborate to particularize, but the average duty on the hundreds of articles nominated in that schedule is 55 per cent. On diamonds the average is less than 11 per cent. On earthenware, stone and china ware the average is 58 per cent. On glassware the average is 55 per cent. For the Leather Trust the average is 43 per cent.

The public document from which the above quotations came contains a list of thousands of articles on which our government levies a tariff, not for revenue to go into the treasury, but that their prices shall be increased to the purchaser to add to the enormous gains of the trusts that have a monopoly of the manufacture and sale of them.

* * *

Now the question is, do the people wish to continue that sort of thing? Mark you, both Taft and Roosevelt say we must have a protective taric. though they are reasonable enough to admit that there is too much protection in the present tariff. Who is to judge just how much protection a tariff should have? Taft and Roosevelt say a commission must be appointed to that labor. We have had one commission of that order, appointed the first year of Taft's administration. At a cost of thousands of dollars it gathered data, pretended to digest them, made report, and the ablest men in both Houses of Congress declare that after careful study they do not know what the report means. And where men do pretend to understand it, they are not at all agreed on what it imports.

Then how can the country hope for tariff reform from either Taft or Roosevelt? It will take years for the commission to report, and both Taft and Roosevelt say that there can be no satisfactory reform of the tariff without such report. Both refuse to surrender the dogma of protection, and as long as we have a protective tariff the manufacturers will find a way to dictate it. They will have their agents in both Houses of Congress, the smartest fellows there—such men as Aldrich. They will attend to the job in the future as they have in the past if the tariff is to continue protective.

* * *

Roosevelt was President from September, 1901, till March, 1909. He solemnly promised to carry out the McKinley policies. McKinley's last public utterance was a plea for tariff revision downward. For seven and one-half years Roosevelt let the tariff severely alone. Is he the man to set to the work of revising the tariff? Not if we know men by their fruits. Taft would not allow the 62nd Congress to reform the tariff. He is the first President to veto a tariff measure, and his excuse was that the bills of the Democrats and the insurgent Republicans took too much of the protection off the Payne-Aldrich law.

If the country wants tariff reform it must seek it at the hands of Woodrow Wilson and a Congress Democratic in both Houses.

FOR EVERY BOY AND GIRL.

Schools Are Opening and Greatest Advantage of Opportunity.

(Editorial in Atlanta Georgian.)

This is the great week of the year all over the United States. It is the week of the public schools.

Millions of children begin again the year of study, of mental work—a year of hope and opportunity.

In the great city schools of iron and brick and glass the children go in hundreds and thousands—a great procession blocking the streets at the morning and evening hours.

In the country, on lonesome hillsides, the small schools are opening patient women are ready for the work that means so little pay and so little gratitude, and a few children gather from far and near under the slanting shingle roof and the flag that flies above it.

No week means as much as this week of school opening to the people of the United States, and especially to the future of the United States.

At the opening of school fathers and mothers should talk to their children and impress upon them what the public schools mean.

For ages human beings were ruled, they were miserable, oppressed and helpless; because they were ignorant.

Very slowly the people at the bottom moved toward the top. Slowly and painfully, in one country after onther, they acquired the greatest of all rights, the right to knowledge.

In this country, more than in any other, that right has been developed.

Every boy and girl who will may learn. The wonderful art of printing and the knowledge of reading open all science, all history, everything that is worth while to the mind of every child.

The boys as they go to school today look very much alike and act very much alike. The big boys tease the little boys, and the little boys retaliate, when they dare.

A spirit looking down from above upon the children would see little difference. But the difference is there, and it is largely in the spirit in which the opening of school is greeted.

Try to make your children realize that school is their opportunity. Make them feel that when the school doors open it means more to them than if the door of some great mine of Aladdin's wealth were opened before them.

Wealth without knowledge is nothing. Knowledge alone makes possession worth while.

Tell your boys and girls how the greatest success in the world has been won by study, and usually by children who had little opportunity—except the chance to get knowledge.

Make them understand how long it has taken to establish public schools and let everybody learn.

Tell your little boy that he has as good a chance today as any boy born in the country—if he will take it.

Make your little girl feel that what the school teaches to her she will teach to her children in the future and do work as important as that of any man.

Interest yourself in the school life of your children, in their studies, in ther success, and especially in their disappointments and school sorrows—those sorrows are very real to little children.

If you can do so, become acquainted with the teacher in whose hands your children are placed. Make the teacher feel that you appreciate the work that the teacher does—the greatest work in the world.

Make your children realize what they owe to the teacher—Obedience, Respect and Gratitude.

The public schools open, the door of knowledge is unlocked, the possibility of success is there—it is the greatest week in the greatest country in the world.

PROTESTS SUNDAY MAIL ORDER.

Illinois Man Criticises Mr. Hitchcock's Recent Delivery Rulings.

John W. MaGann, a resident of Fairbury, Ill., in a letter to the Washington Post raises two pertinent questiois appertaining to recent inaugurations in postal service made by Postmaster General Hitchcock. Mr. Magann charges Mr. Hitchcock with distinguishing between holders of boxes in postoffices, and declares that he should have given a month's notice before putting his Sunday anti-distribution order into effect in order that business men might have arranged to receive their mail on Saturday.

Mr. Magann also takes exception to the action of the postal authorities in discontinuing the stamping upon all first class mail matter of the date of arrival. This action, he declares, gives the town and rural delliveries an opportunity to shirk their duty and fail to make delivery promptly when the destination of mail lies without their direct path. His letter follows:

"Editor Post:—Kindly allow me to ask through the columns of your paper, does Postmaster General Hitchcock expect to improve the mail service and encourage the public to patronize his department by showing partiality between persons who rent boxes in the postoffices throughout the country? By depriving the call box renters of their Sunday mail I assert that he has done an injustice.

"If he intended to cut the call box renter off from his mail, he should first have returned the quarterly rent, and given a month's notice so that they might have arranged to get their mail on Saturday.

"Furthermore, he is discouraging public support by discontinuing the stamping upon all first class mail the date of arrival, thus granting to careless deliverers a feasible excuse for the failure to deliver mail which lies without their way.

"I would appreciate it if you would give space to this letter in your paper. Respectfully. JOHN W. MAGAAN."

IDLE FARMING LANDS

Millions of Acres of Fertile Soil in Remote Regions

(From the New Orleans Picayune.)

B. F. Yoakum, chairman of the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad, said recently that there were 1,903,000,000 acres of land in the United States and careful estimates showed that 1,200,000,000 acres of this land are available for farming purposes. The cultivated acres last year produced $15.72 an acre, not including animals and their products. The uncultivated acres show our agricultural capabilities, for, figured at what we are now doing, they would yield the enormous sum of $13,362,000,000 additional not including animals and their products, which the government estimates in its last year's agricultural report at $2,913,000,000. Mr. Yoakum believes that the problem of agriculture and transportation being developed together is being neglected. In the Southwestern group of States of Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, Arizona and New Mexico there are 160,000,000 acres of land more than 10 miles from a railroad, and the people of these States now need 27,000 miles more of railroads than they have at present to take care of their farming interests. A few miles back from any railroad will show millions of acres of rich land lying idle for lack of transportation. The two big developments that will do for the entire nation the greatest good are the expansion of agriculture and transportation. One cannot go forward without the other.

SUMMER SKIN DISEASES

During the summer most persons are annoyed with pimples, boils, rashes, or eruptions, while others suffer more severely with Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Salt Rheum, or some kindred skin disease. A perfect condition of the skin exists as long as the blood is normal, but when it becomes contaminated with humors and acids its supply of nutritive properties is greatly lessened and it becomes a sharp, acrid fluid which diseases instead of preserving the natural health and texture of the skin. The eruptions may be glossed over and inflammation reduced by the application of washes, cosmetics, salves, etc., but no skin affection can ever be permanently cured in this way; only pure blood can make healthy skin. S. S. S. cures Skin Diseases of every kind by neutralizing the acids and removing the humors from the blood. S. S. S. builds the circulation up to its normal strength, increases its nutritive powers and adds to its purity in every way. Then the skin instead of being irritated with acid humors and impurities, is nourished and healed by a plentiful supply of rich, pure blood. Book on Skin Diseases and any medical advice free.

DAVID'S

YOUNG men who go away to college or the university, or who are fortunate enough to live where the college or university is, are just the sort of men that we're ready for with our new models in

Hart Schaffner & Marx Varsity Line

You have no idea—can't have unless you see them—how far in advance of all other "young men's styles" these are. The fashions are lively, snappy, stunning; the fabrics are chosen for young tastes in color and pattern; but one important point is—the cloths are all-wool; and the tailoring is such that the clothes keep shape. NO TAILOR CAN TOUCH THEM AT DOUBLE THE PRICE.

The Men Who Succeed

as heads of large enterprises are men of great energy. Success, today, demands health. To all is to fail. It's utter folly for a man to endure a weak, run-down, half-alive condition when Electric Bitters will put him right on his feet in short order. "Four bottles did me more real good than any other medicine I ever took," writes Chas. B. Allen, Sylvania, Ga. "After years of suffering with rheumatism, liver trouble, stomach disorders, and deranged kidneys, I am again, thanks to Electric Bitters, sound and well." Try them. Only 50 cents at R. R. Bellamy's.

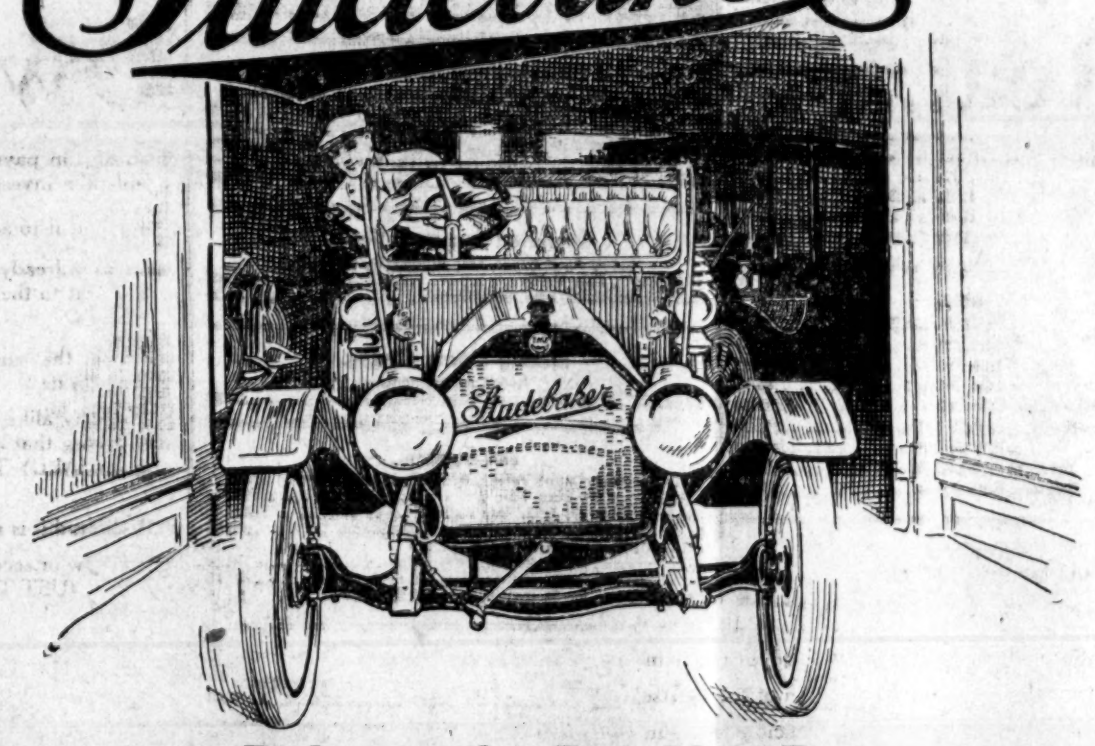
PURCELL BUILDING.

Studebaker



Delivery the Day You Buy

READY—that is the word for the Studebaker car.

Ready for delivery, ready for service—ready every day to prove to you its thorough efficiency, and its up-to-the-minute perfection of workmanship.

It is ready TODAY because the big Studebaker organization, with the greatest equipment for car building in the world, has kept itself in readiness to supply an extraordinary demand.

It is ready because the Studebaker system of car-building guarantees that each car is finished in an up-to-date manner, with the best that immense resources and the highest skill can put into it.

Sixty years of business experience are concentrated in Studebaker cars.

We regard all seasons as equally important so far as quality and efficiency are concerned—we add every improvement as soon as practicable, so that the name Studebaker always means a modern car—a car you can be sure of in every way.

Remember that we ourselves make every part of Studebaker cars—so that we know what is in them and we know what you can get out of them. Our reputation rests on the workmanship in every Studebaker Car—and on your complete satisfaction in the use of it.

The national Studebaker Service is worth thinking of—36 factory branches and 2500 equipped dealers are part of the big organization and the big stand-by-the-owner-system behind the car. Their service means quick delivery to you of any needed part.

All we ask is that you see a Studebaker Car before you buy.
